May include apartments in new design for center

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA) tied up some loose ends last Thursday and, in the process, looked at the possibility of including a few low to moderate income apartments on the upper level of commercial buildings in the new town center.

In going over a Feasibility Study Application Form, WRA member Nicki Johnson took note of a 24.9 percent figure relating to the number of low to moderate income households in Wilmington. This led to a discussion on the apartments. Both Jay Donovan, WRA Chairman, and treasurer Vaughn Surprenant said low cost housing in town center is only an option at this time, but it may help Wilmington fulfill its affordable housing obligation in the future.

Pulling together the information in the application was one of the last tasks of consultant Lynn Kusy, who told the board he is no longer available due to other commitments. The application form outlines the need for a feasibility study and requests that EOC provide $25,000 to finance the study. The development authority plans to match that figure with $5,000 of its own funds.

Donovan said he and Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski will fill out the rest of the application this week and have it signed by members of the Planning Board in case any zoning changes would be necessary at a later date. Donovan also expects to go to the next selectmen's meeting to set up a date for a public hearing which is required by EOC when a board applies for Feasibility Grant funds.

In other business, Donovan told the board he sent a second letter to DPW Commissioner Robert Tierney on the town center project.

In the letter, Donovan notes that because of delays, it looks like construction is "not likely to begin until at least the spring of 1989" and he requests clarification on the proposed timeframes as well as the presence of a DPW representative at future WRA board meetings.

Donovan also re-emphasized environmental conservation, and sewerage concerns brought up by the Chamber of Commerce task force.

At the end of the six page letter, Donovan states that "unless we take advantage of the opportunity provided by your department, the Town Center is likely to turn into a 'ghost town' or a repeat of the Speen Street rotary in Framingham."

Donovan told the Town Crier he has not yet received an answer to his June 12 letter to Tierney. If he doesn't hear anything by the next board meeting, Donovan said there is a good possibility he will go to the Governor's office.

Water commissioners prepare impact report

The Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners, last week at their meeting prepared a full environmental impact report, with reference to the proposal to construct 204 apartments off Ballardvale Street. The 204 apartment project is "upstream" from the town of Wilmington's principal well field at Brown's Crossing. The statement was prepared by chairman George Allan.

The commissioners also signed water and sewer lien commitments. Unpaid water and sewer bills are now to be added to the tax bills, for each parcel of property in Wilmington, and it will be the work of the collector of taxes to collect money due the water and sewer department.

There were letters from two companies, regarding water and/or sewer bills, each giving a viewpoint other than that of the commissioners. After discussion, the agreement was "we are sticking to our guns," in the words of Mr. Allan.

A proposal from the building department of Wilmington to install a gas tank at the highway building drew a negative response from Arthur Smith. Mr. Smith was the originator of the LUST Program in Wilmington, a program against Leaking Underground Storage Tanks in town.

Proposed was the installation of Fiberglass tanks, with an island for gas pumps in the driveway area. Smith said they should not be where trucks drive, and should be in a "vault" to protect the tanks. The commissioners, after a letter was written, voted that the plans to be used could be submitted to Mr. Smith when they are ready, for his approval. This was to prevent any delay more than was necessary, in the work.

The highway department building is adjacent to the Brown's Crossing well field.

Stapczynski also found Vassallo guilty of failing to properly execute the duties of a sergeant, violating a direct order of the Chief of Police, withholding evidence, making false statements in a report, and conduct unbecoming a police officer.

In a statement to the Town Crier, Vassallo said he felt like he was "the victim of a conspiracy." He vowed to appeal the decision before the state Civil Service Commission where he expects to be "vindicated" and returned to his 4 p.m. to midnight shift.

Vassallo, a nine year veteran of the Wilmington Police Department, claimed that he didn't have a fair hearing with Stapczynski as hearing officer. Early in the proceedings, he and Fisher had requested "a fair and impartial hearing officer."

However, Mass General Laws provides that the appointing authority - in this case the Town Manager - can rule on any testimony and is the person who makes the final decision in the case.

The incident, which triggered not only the disciplinary hearing but a prior internal investigation by Chief Stewart, occurred on Saturday, February 23, 1985. It wasn't until February 28, 1986, however, that a hearing got underway.

By all accounts, a call came into the Wilmington police station on the night of February 23 during Vassallo's shift. Vassallo, along with officers Lawrence Redding and Steve Parsons, responded and went to the home of 23-year-old Patrick McNally.

Once at the house, McNally's family asked to have Patrick placed in protective custody because he was creating a disturbance and becoming "uncontrollable." During the hearing, both Vassallo and Redding claimed that McNally told them he had a drug problem and was using a "speedball" that night. McNally's father, Bernard, told the Town Crier his son had been drinking but "was not on any dope that night." Officer Patrick King, who booked McNally at the station, told this paper that "he (McNally) looked drunk."

They brought a "subdued" McNally back to the station where he was booked at approximately 11:55 p.m.

According to testimony, as Redding and Vassallo tried to get him into the cell, McNally reportedly grew violent and refused to get in and, once in, tried to get out.

Most seem to agree Redding pulled McNally into the cell. Redding, at one point, lost his grip while McNally grabbed the bars and had his fingers pried away.

What happened next is subject to interpretation and is the crux of the matter as far as the excessive force charge is concerned.

According to Vassallo, Redding tried to re-establish his grip as McNally bent over and came at Vassallo "snarling and growling." Vassallo told the Town Crier he raised his knee once in defense, as he had been trained to do, and caught McNally in the face, splitting his lip in the exact spot where it had been split earlier in the evening. Then, he went on, McNally began spitting blood and shaking hands, which were bloodied in an earlier scuffle at his house, around the cell.

According to Sgt. James Palmer, both he and Officer James Burke, who were outside the cell, testified that they saw Vassallo either kick or dropkick McNally once. Redding was the only witness who claimed Vassallo kneed McNally twice. When contacted by the Town Crier, Redding said he'd rather not discuss the incident at the present time since the decision may be appealed.

Sometime later, Bernard McNally came to the station to take his son home and found a cell that "looked like a slaughterhouse." Afterward, Vassallo cleaned up the cell, either with or without the knowledge of Palmer, who took over the midnight shift. By his own admission, Vassallo also took a tape which had recorded part of the night's events from the cell camera and started to fill out a report for Chief Stewart.

Throughout the complicated hearing, which, in the beginning was closed to the public, several key issues arose and conflicting stories were told, stories largely reiterated from reports turned in to Chief Stewart March 25, 1985. Attempts were made at times to discredit Chief Stewart, pointing to uneven handling of other problems, inconsistent enforcement of police regulations, and favoritism.

During the hearing, 24 pieces of evidence were introduced. These included photos taken of the cell that night, a diagram of cell 4 and the position of witnesses at the time of the incident, and character testimony for Vassallo who, according to Officer David McCue, had a good reputation for truth and accuracy and was never seen by him to use more force "than was reasonable and necessary."

To the end, Vassallo maintained his innocence and said the incident has "completely polarized" the Wilmington police force. Palmer, whose report refuted much of Vassallo's testimony, claimed Vassallo could have avoided a hearing and prior civil complaint filed against him by McNally "if he'd only apologized." He told the Town Crier "Vassallo put us all on the spot," adding "he got in a web and quicksand (and) you wouldn't believe how many sleepless nights we've all had."

In his closing statements, Fisher said the decision "comes down to a question of credibility." Fisher stressed that Vassallo did only "what any good cop would have done," in following proper training procedure. He added that "I hope my career never hangs in the balance of a split second decision."

Altman said that a policeman has an "obligation" to follow the law and that doesn't include violating the rights of a prisoner. In summation, Altman made reference to "two smoking guns" which point to a guilty charge. One was the seven photos of the blood-spattered cell after the incident. The other was a check for $10,000 made out to Patrick McNally for full payment of all claims against Vassallo to settle a civil complaint. Altman called the check "as much a consciousness of guilt as you'll ever see."

Ironically, both Vassallo's wife and Palmer struck the same chord in talking to the Town Crier at the close of the proceedings.

"Justice has got to prevail," said Palmer.

"We want the truth to come out: we want the truth," said Mrs. Vassallo.

Dembowski chosen to participate in seminar

The Institute for Development of Educational Activities, Inc. (I/D/E/A) and the Kettering Foundation announced recently that Mr. Henry S. Dembowski, assistant superintendent of schools of the Wilmington Public Schools was recently selected as a member of the 19th I/D/E/A. Academy of Fellows summer program. Mr. Dembowski was chosen in the top one percent of the outstanding American educators to receive this honor and participate in a week-long seminar July 13-19 at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont, California.

During the week, a faculty of nationally prominent educational leaders address the Fellows and meet with them in small groups to consider effective leadership for educational issues. Topics presented will draw attention to the coming administrator shortage, win-win negotiations, improving classroom instruction, critical thinking, nurturing professionalism in all staff members and the role of the artist in learning.

Co-sponsored by I/D/E/A. and the Kettering Foundation, the Academy of Fellows is the longest continuing inservice program for school administrators in the nation. The Fellows Program has provided professional development for more than 6,000 participants from North America and overseas.

I/D/E/A, a non-profit foundation, was established in 1965 to encourage constructive change and excellence in elementary and secondary schools. The Kettering Foundation was chartered in 1927 by inventor and industrialist, Charles F. Kettering. Education has been a major interest of both foundations based in Dayton, Ohio.

Stray pup

Apparently abandoned, this puppy was found on Route 93 near Concord Street. The pup is a female, mostly tan with a black face, possibly a cross between a boxer and a shepherd. She is available for adoption from the Wilmington dog officer, who may be contacted through the police business phone, 658-5071.

Away carries straight message

by Arlene Surprenant

Since its inception a year and a half ago, the popular band Away has spread its no drugs message to junior and senior high school students in such towns as Andover, Methuen, Holyoke, Lincoln-Sudbury, and Salem, New Hampshire. But the band is perhaps most well known right here in Wilmington where it has played numerous concerts for Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) and other organizations at little or no cost to its growing number of fans.

What began as a promotional way to get a foot in the door has turned into a serious attempt to help young people steer clear of the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

According to Wilmington drummer Bob Magliozzi, who founded the band and acts as spokesman, none of the five members do drugs or drink alcohol. From the beginning they agreed they could put this fact to good use in getting to play in area schools.

"The schools loved it and it caught on," Magliozzi says, adding that Away is the first band in New England to promote the no drugs message.

Besides Magliozzi, the band is made up of keyboard player Carl Beatrice, also of Wilmington; guitarist Craig Wilkins, who writes much of their music; bass player James McDonough; and lead singer Steve Taylor.

Manager Dennis Milardo is also an important part of the group. It is he who tells audience members during a break in the music how drugs affect the body and why young people should avoid them. Magliozzi says Milardo points out that the Away musicians don't do drugs or alcohol "and look what they have achieved."

"We don't like to push it too heavily. We just try to get the message across on our own level," Magliozzi explains. "We're out to have a good time, we have a lot of fun, and we want them (the audience) to have fun too," he adds.

To reinforce the no drugs message, all of the songs are "very positive" and center on such themes as love, success, and building self-esteem. There are too many "bad messages" getting across to youngsters today, says Magliozzi.

KEOGH REPORT FORMS DUE SOON

If you administer a Keogh pension plan for your employees—even if you are a self-employed individual with a one-person plan, the Internal Revenue Service wants to see your annual return/report; the due date in most cases is July 31.

Reporting has been simplified for those with one-person (or one-person and spouse) plans; only the short, 2 page Form 5500-R need be filed, even for a new plan. Plans with more participants, but less than 100 at the beginning of the plan year, must fill out Form 5500-C the first year and every 3rd year thereafter. The rest of the time, the simpler form can be used. Larger plans and those other than simple pension plans must file Form 5500.

In addition, your return may be accompanied by Schedule P, the annual return by the Fiduciary—the bank, fund, or insurance company that holds your funds. It sets a time limit on audits.

If necessary, you can get an extension of time to file the report; that calls for Form 5558. Late-filing penalties are high.

For help with your federal filing requirements, see us at:

Local rock

Away

"and we're sick of seeing that stuff."

Besides promoting no drugs, Away is a non-profit organization which charges only expenses related to lighting and their sound system. When playing at Wilmington High School, or the North or West Intermediate Schools, for instance, the local SADD chapter or the school itself paid the nominal cost. The band, laughs Magliozzi, usually just "breaks even."

Magliozzi describes Away's music as mainstream rock and roll. As is true of most up-and-coming bands, members of Away look toward the day when they can cut their own records and receive wider recognition. That day isn't too far off.

In a few weeks, Away expects to release a record under its own label. Included on it will be two original songs "Lonely Heart" and "Summer Drivin Rock and Roll".

The musicians are also seeking some backing and donations from local companies and any private citizens who believe as they do that young people should refrain from using drugs or alcohol. The funds would help defray studio expenses in cutting the record and allow them to release two other songs as well.

Lazarus, a heavy metal rock and roll band

"I got this concept of Lazarus coming back from the dead. The name is kind of symbolic."

The name, according to spokesman Jon Fitzgerald, is also the name of a relatively new rock band which has been making headlines throughout the region.

In a recent interview, Fitzgerald talked easily of his band's beginnings and his struggle to cut an EP and receive national recognition.

The band was formed in January of 1985. It is comprised of former Wilmingtonite Fitzgerald, who plays keyboard and bass guitar, drummer Randy Jackson, lead guitar Denis Cormier, and vocalist Brian Ryder.

The hard rock and heavy metal sound of Lazarus comes from some original compositions dreamed up by all four members. "It really merits its own description," Fitzgerald says with a laugh.

Two of their most popular songs are Beauty Queen and Victim of Suicide. At present, members are working on the song America, which is "a kind of tribute to all the good things in American society" and something "we're really proud of" says Fitzgerald.

"Every place we can play we'll grab," continues Fitzgerald. The band has already done a lot of work locally, playing in such locations as the Elks Hall in Lawrence, Haverhill, and Methuen; the Moose Hall in North Reading; and the "prestigious" nightclub The Channel in Boston. Lazarus has also played benefits and can be heard on college radio stations as far away as Vermont and New Hampshire.

The musicians have cut demos, one of which went to a studio in Los Angeles, and have an upcoming "video shoot" scheduled in Reading.

"We figure with faith and hard work we can achieve our goal," says Fitzgerald. Part of their goal includes cutting an album for Columbia Records, which has already expressed an interest in the band. Members also hope to take Lazarus on tour. Profits, while nice, admits Fitzgerald, are only a "secondary" consideration.

Band members practice hard every other day in Cormier's Lawrence home and funnel a lot of money into realizing their ambitions. This past year they have received accolades from the public, something Fitzgerald calls "the best part" of their experience. Though members range in age from 17 to 24 years old and hold down other jobs, their first love seems to be Lazarus and making it big.

For those who want to hear the band firsthand, Lazarus can be heard in concert this Friday at 8 p.m. in the American Legion Hall in Reading. Admission is $4.00.

Housing authority struggles to overcome obstacles

by Arlene Surprenant

Frustration mounted as members of the Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA) struggled to overcome various obstacles to a timely completion of the Deming Way modernization project as well as the construction of eight new low to moderate income homes and elderly housing proposed for Deming Way. At times, WHA members as well as design architect Jerry Ingersoll expressed anger and frustration with EOCED for not recognizing the board's unique problems in attempting to stick to a specific time frame and get the work done.

Top priority in the updating of the older units was the need to address a severe heating problem Deming Way has had for the past few years. Members pointed to leaking underground pipes and malfunctioning oil burners as well as conversion problems they've had since the dual system was redesigned in 1982. Currently, they also suspect that hot water is leaking into cold water pipes underground.

"It's been a real horror show," chairman Kevin McMillan affirmed as member Bill Strob sought to get the work done before another winter sets in.

Adding fuel to the fire was the fact that Ingersoll was told by the state that he shouldn't get involved but that the board should contact the original firm of Ginn and Dubin Engineers Inc., to correct the problems.

This, members refused to do.

Instead, they made a motion to use Ingersoll because of his knowledge of the system and another motion to request that extra funds provided for Phase II of the modernization be given emergency status to help correct the problems. The entire board anticipates meeting with EOCED as well as the state designated architect this week to move the work along.

Underground storage tanks on the Deming Way site and the new law dealing with them are posing another serious problem for the board.

Though McMillan agreed to the need for a strong law to protect Wilmington's groundwater, he also recognized there is "definite seepage" in the two 30 year old tanks. He suggested they begin testing the 3,000 gallon tanks immediately and take whatever steps are necessary to resolve the problem and find the funds.

In an update, Ingersoll told members he anticipates going before the Board of Appeals next Tuesday to obtain a comprehensive permit for the new gallery-style building for the elderly at Deming Way. He also expects to seek approval of the Conservation Commission for that building to extend further than anticipated into a wetland area. He hopes to compensate by putting in a catch area.

How to raise funds to cover the extra cost of tying into the Cedar Street sewer line also brought its own share of headaches.

Members were told the town's share would remain at $75,000 and EOCED's share would stay at $85,00, leaving $44,000 to be raised. Kevin said that only two contractors submitted bids for the work and the lowest bid came in $44,000 above what anyone anticipated." In a letter to the board, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski attributed that to the small nature of the scope of the work and the large amount of work available in the state.

Strob complained they should have been notified of the additional cost earlier so state rep Jim Miceli could have taken it before his committee. He added, however, that Miceli said he would work on obtaining the needed funds.

The low-to-moderate income homes slated to be built in several areas of town are not without their own problems.

Board members have already been informed by the Wilmington Board of Health that septic system designs for the homes do not meet Title V regulations. The state architect disagrees with this view. McMillan told those present that "hopefully, (this is) in the process of being resolved."

Another problem has surfaced with property on Carey Street.

Humanitarian award for Al Fiorenza

Al Fiorenza of West Street, Wilmington on Saturday was presented the Humanitarian of the Year award by the Post-Gazette, an Italian-American newspaper. More than 100 friends were present at the Casa di Fior. Among them were members of the Ancient and Honorable Company of Artillery.

Fiorenza is probably the only resident of Wilmington to hold the Silver Star, the nation's second-highest award for gallantry in the U.S. Army.

He was 19 years old at the time, a private serving in the Korean War. He was part of a small force of U.S. soldiers occupying a hill which was called "Pork Chop". Somehow he was separated from his group at the top of the hill, and surrounded by the Chinese troops.

When the U.S. Army reached the top of Pork Chop Hill the next morning, Al was still fighting the Chinese who surrounded him. He had killed, single-handedly, 36 of the enemy.

Al rarely speaks of that night, but he does wear the badge of the Silver Star on his lapel.

Fiorenza family

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

There are two aspects of the recent civil service hearing concerning a sergeant of the Wilmington Police Department which must bring great concern to the citizens and elected officials of Wilmington.

The first is with regard to the objectivity of the hearing itself. In accordance with procedures set down by State Civil Service, the decision of the hearing had to be rendered by the town manager, who also acted as the hearing officer. The difficulty in this is that it puts an executive officer of the town in a most difficult position. Though appointed and not elected, the town manager is nonetheless subject to various political pressures which can only make the decision making process in a hearing all that more difficult. Simply put, no one within the community could have acted as the hearing officer and given a decision which was not in some way biased, according to the strictest definition of the word. The community we live in is a small one, where everyone either knows each other, or knows of each other.

Were this case to have been before a judge and jury in a court of law, a defense attorney would not have allowed any individual to hear the case who had any previous knowledge of the defendant. But apparently a statute in the laws of the Commonwealth does not choose to treat civil servants with the same privileges as the rest of us; namely to be tried, when accused, before an impartial body. Certainly the town manager would be the first person to join in a lobbying effort so as to change the procedures set down by the state for civil service hearings, in order to make them both more impartial and realistic. The International Brotherhood of Police Officers and the Mass. Police Association should consider filing the necessary legislation which will protect their membership from even the slightest deviation of fair due process.

The second issue in this case which has brought concern to the community is the severity of the final decision rendered by the town manager at the close of the hearing. The sergeant in question had been found guilty of using 'excessive force' on an individual who had been taken into custody by the Wilmington Police Department. The town counsel centered his case concerning that excessive force on the fact that the sergeant later made a payment to the individual who had been arrested in order to avoid litigation in the matter, which was being suggested. Town counsel believed this to be a 'smoking gun' and an 'admission of guilt' on the part of the sergeant. However, another perspective could be that he was avoiding putting his home and family in jeopardy, as the liability of police officers is extreme. The accusation of excessive force against a police officer is such a serious one that many juries seem to be very quick to sympathize with the person bringing charges. In other words, were all too quick to jump on a cop as opposed to defending him and realizing that there might be a legitimate explanation out there.

None of this is to suggest that the use of excessive force can be excused by the town fathers or the community at large. However, a strong feeling after the hearing was that an extreme amount of uncertainty remained regarding the charges brought against the sergeant. And for that matter, how do we as a community define excessive force on the part of a police official? When bringing an individual into custody, who gives great resistance and perhaps even strikes back, what do we want a cop's response to be -- or better yet, what would we do ourselves.

The end result of this hearing is not a temporary disciplinary action against the officer involved but a permanent reduction in rank to that of patrolman. Such incidents as this have come up before, but never with such a severe verdict in the end, and here against a member of the police department who was universally recognized as having an untarnished, exemplary record. What is important for everyone to realize is that the sergeant involved has already stated publicly that he will appeal the decision of the hearing. Secondly, none of this can detract from the excellent work of the officers and staff of the Wilmington Police Department. Theirs is not an easy job, but one which is probably the most difficult of any profession in our society. And yet, their performance proves that they handle that pressure very well and certainly are Wilmington's Finest. Subsequently, when charges are made against an officer, it should be the community which first demands a fair procedure for examining the charges, and if necessary, disciplinary action which can be construed as reasonable.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

In response to the editorial in the July 9 edition of the Town Crier, I would like to point out that there is a lot more involved in animal control (dog catcher) than just picking up dogs for $15,000 a year.

Let's make people more aware of this job and what it requires. There are no benefits (including no health insurance) as the Town Crier pointed out. You deal with vicious as well as wounded animals that must be handled carefully, not just dogs. You also have the privilege of picking up unclaimed dead animals.

There are no days or nights off, weekends or holidays. If the animal control officer is sick, that's too bad, as the animals in the pound still have to be fed, watered and cleaned.

If you are a concerned dog officer, and if one of the animals in your care is sick or injured, hopefully you will take it to a vet for care, not just to be put to sleep.

Also, let's not forget that the dog officer does barn inspections and quarantines.

Consider this from one who has learned quite a lot in a short period of time.

Sincerely,

Your animal control officer
Ellen Webster

Dear Larz:

I attended a public hearing regarding "excessive force" by a Wilmington police officer last week and wept when I heard the testimony of both attorneys about this "violent" young man who, at the request of his father, had been wrestled to the ground by three police officers in order to subdue him and take him into protective custody. There was no disagreement, by either side, that this young man was out of control and a danger both to himself and his family.

The vision of his madness as the story unfolded was heartbreaking. A son threatening his father and mother. My heart went out to the young man, his family and the police officers involved in this altercation. I ask myself how it had evolved to this. Why were charges not brought against this young man for his conduct?

As the events of that night in February 1985, unfolded, we were told of this young man being arrested the previous night for "driving under the influence," and of many previous violent incidents. We were told how a policeman's clothes were torn and the automatic reloader knocked from his holster; we were told of a brawl that took place when the officers tried to place this young man "in protective custody" and how he fought violently when taken to the holding cell of the Wilmington Police Department.

We were told how in a matter of seconds in the midst of all of this chaos, he was injured in an action of self-defense as he lunged at a police officer. The officer in question admitted to kneeling him to protect himself.

Though his injury cost this police officer $10,000 and a demotion neither the police nor the family of this young man felt the injury was serious enough to take him for medical treatment. This doesn't make sense.

The police officer in question, Officer Robert Vassallo of the Wilmington Police Department has been charged and found guilty by our town manager of using excessive force. He has been demoted, demoralized and his promising career in shambles and this incident has caused further diversion among the corps of the Wilmington Police Department.

Obviously there were a lot of errors in judgement on both parties and many questions unanswered. However, it was not proven beyond reasonable doubt, to me, that this police officer used "excessive force" in defending himself.

We should never forget in our dealings with a police officer that he may have spent an eight-hour day confronting drunks, thieves, and juvenile delinquents. He may have suffered painful blows. He may have been attacked. A near psychotic may have spit in his face. At all times, nevertheless, he is expected to suppress any expression of resentment or frustration.

"We expect a police officer to show the composure of the surgeon, the patient understanding of the clergyman, and the learning of an appellate judge. And if he fails, he and his office may be condemned or scorned in a manner never inflicted on any other public servant," Fred Einbau, Professor of Criminal Law.

I am not suggesting that the public must condone whatever the police do, or that we should never hold the police accountable for mistakes. No responsible police officer asks for or expects any such special privilege.

Police do not create the chaotic conditions such as that night in February 1985, they must deal with them. There are many questions unanswered in all of this, and I believe the citizens of Wilmington must ask, and receive definite answers.

In our efforts to preserve individual rights and civil liberties, we cannot impose so many restrictions on law enforcement agencies that they will be powerless to prevent crime and apprehend criminals.

Our only practical course is to strive to improve the quality of our law enforcement agencies and to create an atmosphere in which the civil rights and liberties of "all" will be respected.

This officer has paid dearly and in his appeal he will have many other legal expenses. There has been a "defense fund" set up at the Reading Co-op Bank for Sgt. Vassallo and if you feel there has been an injustice please contribute and help him and his family out.

Correction

A letter to the editor in the Town Crier on July 9 said that the Sciarappa farm on Andover Street, Wilmington was about to be sold for industry.

A member of the Sciarappa family called to say that such is not the case. It is a working farm and the owners intend to keep it as such.

Ritchie meets striped critter

Inspector John Ritchie had a close encounter of the wrong kind late Monday evening.

Ritchie, along with Officer Joe Waterhouse, answered a complaint at a Kelley Road address about 11 p.m. Waterhouse went to the front door, Ritchie to the back.

The subject of the complaint had left by the time police arrived. But Ritchie found a little surprise near the back door -- a little surprise with a white stripe down its back.

Insp. Ritchie was obviously none too pleased with the situation, and neither were his fellow officers when he returned to the station.

News analysis

Questions on the Vassallo case

by Arlene Surprenant

After interviewing numerous witnesses both on and off the record and talking to residents who knew the key people involved in the drawn out Vassallo hearing, it soon became apparent that the deeper one dug, the more complicated the case became.

Two or three of the most important witnesses either could not be reached for comment or refused to go into any detail on the case. A lot of the hearing took place behind closed doors, and the few sessions open to the public brought out some conflicting stories which were hard to reconcile with previous testimony.

Nevertheless, what did emerge, at least in this writer's mind, were some nagging questions that won't go away.

For instance, was it a kick or a knee which split Patrick McNally's lip and bloodied his nose? And how much force is excessive?

Buzz Stapczynski favored Officer Lawrence Redding's version perhaps because he was in the best position to see the incident unfold. In his summation, Alan Altman claimed Redding told James McNally at a retirement party that Vassallo was "much too rough" on his brother. However, Sgt. James Palmer told this writer Redding's testimony "wasn't as strong as we thought it was going to be" and, on the stand, Redding reportedly changed an earlier story.

Why did it take so long to bring the incident out in the open?

Under Mass General Law, once a civil complaint is filed, Police Chief Bobby Stewart had to stop his internal investigation. Once complete, Stewart made a recommendation to the Town Manager to open a disciplinary hearing against Vassallo.

Why wasn't the camera in the cell turned on during the actual incident?

According to Officer Patrick King who worked a double shift that night, it was the first time in two years that he had worked the desk. And since he wasn't sure how to hit the "right combination of switches" to get the relatively new system to work, King never turned the system on. Sometime later Officer Steve Parsons turned on the tape. Vassallo told this writer that he took the tape and made a copy of it because it showed Patrick McNally "under the influence, spitting blood, and making threats to me."

Did Vassallo try to cover up or hide his actions?

According to Altman, several things Vassallo did that night and later point to his guilt. Altman questioned why Vassallo cleaned up the bloody cell. Vassallo said he was told to do so by Palmer. Palmer said Vassallo acted on his own initiative. Altman asked why Vassallo took the tape and what happened to it while in his possession. He asked why Vassallo made a phone call to James McNally in Georgia sometime after midnight.

Altman also questioned why Vassallo paid $10,000 to McNally to settle out of court after McNally filed a complaint at Woburn District Court. Attorney Jeff Fisher told this writer the check is not an admission of guilt nor admissible in court. Vassallo said he was approached by McNally and his lawyer, who proposed the settlement, and he felt it would cost less to settle. Bernard McNally claims Vassallo "called and hounded us" to settle out of court and a condition was placed on the money that his son Patrick couldn't testify against Vassallo at a later date.

What role did Steve Parsons play in the incident? And why was Parsons, who has since resigned from the Wilmington police force, ordered out of the station at that critical time around midnight?

According to Palmer, at midnight Parsons was on his shift and he ordered him to take the auxiliary car and go out on patrol. Palmer claims Parsons said he would go on patrol when Redding removed his things from the car and instead went to get coffee, leading to a charge of insubordination. Vassallo said Palmer sent Parsons out to get coffee, leaving only he and Redding to get McNally into the cell.

Other questions come to mind.

Why weren't any charges filed against Patrick McNally, who was certainly disorderly and who had ripped buttons off Redding's shirt during the scuffle? Did McNally have any prior injuries which would have accounted for some of the blood in a cell that "looked like a slaughterhouse?" Who had the ultimate responsibility for filling a report of the incident since it was spread over both Vassallo's and Palmer's shifts and why weren't the reports turned over to Chief Stewart prior to March 25?

While this reporter has every confidence in Chief Stewart's professional ability and sense of fair play, one has to ask one final question: What, if anything, will happen to the Wilmington Police Department as a result of this incident, allegations made during the hearing, and conflicting testimony by several of its veteran officers?

The graveyards of Tewksbury

Older than America

The headstone of Dr. John Kittredge has weathered the elements at the Shawshen Street graveyard since 1756, some 30 years before America gained her freedom.

Forlorn and forgotten

These forlorn grave markers, lying almost buried on the forest floor, are all that remain to mark the state hospital burial ground, off East Street in Tewksbury.

Death is the last and greatest equalizer of them all. We know from our earliest years that death, like taxes, is unavoidable.

But while death treats everyone equally, the cemetery usually does not.

Graveyards have changed over the years. The simple grave markers of today are a far cry from the lyric, sometimes macabre headstones left over from centuries past.

In earlier times, the dead were usually buried behind the church. The word "churchyard" still means a cemetery, although few churches today have burial plots on their own grounds.

The newer cemeteries, like St. Mary's on River Road, are filled with granite headstones that are simple and unadorned. Usually the last name of the interred is all that appears, along with the dates of birth and death.

Others graveyards, like the burial ground on the corner of Shawshen and Main Streets, date back to the Revolutionary War and earlier. The headstones there are made of slate or limestone, and many hold lines of verse that are macabre and startling. These timeless messages still have the power to send chills up and down our spines, though their authors have long since filled graves of their own.

As an example, take this verse, found on a slate marker at the Tewksbury Cemetery on East Street:

*A father sleeps within this grave,
His life no earthly power could save;*

*A son reposes by his side,
Who early passed cold Jordan's tide.*

*Farewell dear friends, to all adieu.
No more shall we return to you;
But you to us must shortly come,
For death will bear you to the tomb.*

Haunting but lovely, that verse was found on the grave of Dudley J. Marston, who died just before Christmas in 1836, and his 18-month-old son, who died a few weeks later. After more than 100 years, we still feel the pain of their passage.

Or this simple verse, found on a headstone at the Shawshen Street burial ground:

*A father kind, a mother dear;
Two much loved friends lie buried here.*

The grave belongs to John Clark, who died Feb. 13, 1846, at age 85, and his wife, who died two weeks later at the same age.

Another sad tale from the Shawshen Street ground involves the Beard family.

Aaron and Susanna Beard had a daughter, Hannah, who died at the age of 11 in 1759. Hannah died five days before the birth of her sister, Dorcas. The younger sister died exactly one year later, on her first birthday.

Not all grave markers are so eloquent, however.

The Pine Hill Cemetery, at the end of Indian Hill Road in Tewksbury, holds a number of recent graves, all of them marked with footstones.

But there are other footstones at Pine Hill which are rather unusual. In the middle of open fields lie footstones which simply list years, without names or dates.

The years given are 1902 - 1922, 1920 - 1935 and so forth.

This cemetery is the final resting place of the cadavers from four medical schools: Harvard, Tufts, UMass and Boston University, according to Tewksbury funeral director Donald J. Dee.

Dee said the Pine Hill Cemetery is privately owned is still in active use.

Another private cemetery is the one located behind the Oblate Novitiate house on Chandler Street. Dee said this lot is the burial place of priests and other members of the religious order.

More unusual still is the old burial ground of the state hospital.

The markers of this cemetery are simple iron crosses, lying hidden in a dense tangle of forest, in the woods off East Street. The crosses are numbered, and there are literally hundreds of them.

These simple markers were once placed in neat rows and columns, but time and neglect have taken their toll. Large pine trees, easily 50 years old, have grown up between the metal crosses, breaking their ranks. Some of the crosses are completely grown over.

A set of rosary beads is wrapped around cross number 398, but a hospital spokeswoman said the name of the deceased is privileged information, not to be released.

Just as well, perhaps.

Some of the colorful history of New England may be found in its cemeteries. A walk through the burial grounds in Tewksbury can be startling, saddening and even funny.

But it's always interesting.

obituaries

John Ubanowski

John W. Urbanowski of 80 Grove Avenue, Wilmington died at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Jamaica Plain Sunday evening.

Mr. Urbanowski, 67 years of age, was born in South Boston, the son of the late Kazimierz (Parezewski) and the late Valentine Urbanowski. He had lived in South Boston during his younger years and had been a resident of Wilmington for the past 30 years.

A World War II veteran, he served in the U.S. Army and held the rank of 2nd lieutenant. He was the recipient of the Order of Purple Heart medal.

He held membership in the American Legion Post 269, Boston (Dorchester), the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3340, New Haven, Conn., and the Disabled American Veterans, Wilmington. Prior to retirement he was employed by Railway express for many years.

Mr. Urbanowski was the widower of Ann L. (Marnell) and is survived by his sister, Mrs. Carl (Genevieve H.) Sarica of Wilmington.

The funeral will be held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home Thursday morning at 9:15 followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church at 10:00 celebrated by the Rev. Michael J. Kearney. Interment will follow in Wildwood Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday from 2 to 4 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

George Murray

George A. (Jerry) Murray, formerly of Deming Way, Wilmington died Friday morning at Tewksbury Hospital following a lengthy illness.

Seventy-five years of age, he was born in Wilmington the son of the late Mary J. (Doucette) and the late Hugh C. Murray. He lived in Wilmington most of his life.

Mr. Murray served in the Seabee branch of the U.S. Navy during World War II and held membership in American Legion Post 136, Wilmington. He served as a machinist for Monsanto Chemical Co. for many years prior to retirement and held membership in the Wilmington Sons of Italy and Golden Age Club.

He was the widower of Grace A. (Altavesta) Murray and is survived by his four sisters, M. Dorothy Shelley and Gertrude McCarron of Wilmington, Ruth E. Doucette of Billerica, Mary Catherine Hardy of Florida; his brother, Roy E. Murray of Raymond, N.H. and many nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington, on Monday morning followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church celebrated by the Rev. Michael J. Kearney. Interment followed in Wildwood Cemetery.

Harnden descendant celebrates 75th

Elizabeth Lillian Harnden Hewitt turned 75 a few days ago, and her sisters joined her, at a party on Willow Street, in Tewksbury. About 50 guests were at the party.

Elizabeth now lives on Delaney Drive, in Tewksbury. She and her three sisters are daughters of the late Grace and Francis Edward Harnden, formerly of Cambridge, but residents of Wilmington for some years after World War II. They lived on Cook Hill in south Wilmington and later on Hobson Avenue.

Beatrice Harnden Champa is now a resident of DeCarolis Drive in Tewksbury. Her sisters, Helen Harnden Hayes, and F. (Pat) Priscilla Marinin now live in Syracuse, New York.

There is a chance, just a chance, that they are descendants of Capt. John Harnden of Wilmington. It is a long and by no means complete story.

Captain John Harnden, Wilmington Minuteman, commanded a company of soldiers after Concord and Lexington in Cambridge, a part of the Second Middlesex Regiment. On the day of Bunker Hill that company, and two others, one from Chelmsford and one from Reading, were stationed at Harvard College to guard the American camp.

The Chelmsford company, commanded by Capt. Ford, did get into the fighting that afternoon. The Reading and Wilmington companies were kept at Harvard until the battle was almost over. They marched to Bunker Hill at the very last moment of the battle. The Town Crier published the details of the event several years ago.

Captain John had two brothers, Colonel Joshua, for whom the Harnden Tavern was named, and Lieutenant Benjamin, who lived on the hill at High Street. To trace the descendants of Joshua is possible. To trace the descendants of John and Benjamin is not so easy.

Somehow, in Wilmington, the records were not kept, with regard to those families. There is no valid explanation, except that the people of Wilmington were moving to other parts of the country.

Henry Harnden, to name one - not the Henry Harnden who lived on the hill overlooking Silver Lake but the one who captured Jefferson Davis at the end of the Civil War - was born in Wilmington, but there is no record.

Henry married a girl in Roxbury in 1848, and then went out to Wisconsin. The Roxbury records show that he was born in Wilmington. The Wisconsin records show that he became a general as a result of the Civil War.

But Capt John Harnden disappears, about 1800, as does his brother Lieutenant Benjamin. Yes, there were many other Harnden men and women in Wilmington, but a lot disappeared, too.

There is one clue that has always been interesting. Asa Sheldon, who called himself a Wilmington farmer, wrote an autobiography about 1862, talking about when he was a young man, and how he built railroads and did other things. There are three copies in the Wilmington Library.

Asa tells of one time he was in Medford or Cambridge, and met a streetcar conductor named Harnden. It was, one would guess, about 1845 or 1850.

The streetcar conductor knew him and said he would not have to pay. Of course it was a horse drawn streetcar.

The conductor turned out to be a great-grandson of Capt. John Harnden. For Asa that was a welcome surprise.

He told the conductor how he had known the Harnden family, Capt. John, his son, and his grandson, the father of the conductor. It was a joy to Asa, as he told of Capt. John paying a visit to Asa, at the time when he had a broken leg.

But, Asa did not name any of those four men, other than Capt. John. He leaves the reader, who is looking for clues, in a totally frustrated position.

Those four Harnden ladies, Elizabeth, Beatrice, Helen and Priscilla, came from the Boston area. Maybe, just maybe, they are great - great - great - great - granddaughters of Capt. John.

Housing Bill signed by Governor.

A bill designed to ease the housing shortage for persons over the age of 60 has been signed into law by the Governor.

State Representative James R. Miceli (D-Wilmington), who filed the measure, said, "I am extremely gratified to see this bill signed into law. We all know the housing problems facing our seniors in Massachusetts. This law is specifically designed to attack those problems.

"The statute provides a tax exemption for the improvement or alteration of residential property, provided that those improvements are necessary for the housing of a person who is at least 60 years old," Miceli continued, "Passage of this bill into law is the culmination of years of hard work. In my opinion, this law will help to alleviate the housing shortage facing many of our older citizens.

"Let me stress that this law must still be approved by each city and town under the Home Rule provision of the statute. The law will then take effect in that community."

Representative Miceli pointed out that a person applying for an exemption must furnish the community assessors with a certificate from the local housing authority stating that such improvements to a dwelling are necessary to provide housing for a person who is at least 60 years of age. A similar certificate must be filed each year.

Stewart said the entire graduation took up about three hours of videotape, and that he would not edit much out of it.

Channel 43 is the educational channel for the town.

Trade and barter booming

by Bill Conlon

One of the newest businesses on the North Shore is also one of the absolute oldest.

Unlimited Business Exchange of New England, run by Ken Meharg, is founded on the oldest known business principle -- that of barter and trade.

Meharg suggests barter for almost any business, as a way to fill down time and move excess inventory, and the success of UBE bears him out. More than 600 businesses on the North Shore belong to his barter exchange, which is based in Melrose, Mass.

According to Meharg, his role is that of a broker. He arranges trades between his clients and supplies them with a form of trading credits -- imaginary money in the truest sense.

As an example, say a dentist has an open slot on his schedule. Rather than let the chair go unfilled, the dentist agrees to trade his down time for something else.

But what could the dentist get in trade for his services? If he wanted a chicken, he could trade his dental work for that. But let's say he wanted his car painted. Our dentist would then have to call every car painting shop in New England until he found someone with a cavity and a willingness to trade.

That's where Meharg and his Unlimited Business Exchange comes in.

With Meharg's system, a list of goods and services comes with each membership. Once our imaginary dentist decides to trade his down time for something else, he simply looks through the book to find what he wants, then calls Meharg and arranges the trade.

The customer who comes into the dentist's office may be anyone. It could be a restaurant owner who has traded dinners, or a printer who trades off the printing of business cards, or the owner of a florist shop. Meharg keeps track of all of the trades by computer and matches need with desire.

"Our biggest problem is to make people aware of trading," said Meharg, who describes his system as a supplement to regular business.

According to the self-styled entrepreneur, professional barter has only been around for about ten years. Most bartering is done privately, he said, but Meharg claims his system gives more choices to those who want to trade their excess inventory and down time for other goods and services.

One of the benefits of bartering, Meharg said, is to increase traffic in local businesses. Just having people come through is good for business, he said, and it is not uncommon for someone to use part of their trade credits in a store, then buy something else with cash.

The trade credits are like cash, Meharg said, and each account is billed monthly. Meharg's share is eight percent of each transaction, which isn't much when someone trades a few thousand dollars worth of goods a year.

But there can be drawbacks. If a store owner offers too much in trade, it could be disastrous for the business.

Meharg said that that problem is handled through trade limits and the brokerage itself. Since all trades go through Meharg's office, he gets to limit the number and value of each trade. All trading is done voluntarily, he said.

Meharg also said there is a limit to who can join. Only businesses and professional people, such as lawyers and accountants, are eligible. This keeps the exchange balanced, he said, and offers the most variety in goods and services open for trade.

But Meharg is doing a booming business. His total trades amounted to about one million dollars last year alone, he said, with more businesses joining the exchange all the time.

And records are kept on each transaction, Meharg noted. He said his firm issues 1099 forms for tax purposes and that the IRS is kept up to date.

"Bartering without records may hurt during an IRS audit," he said.

While the ancient practice of barter and trade will never take over the American market, it is a good way to take up the slack. And if Ken Meharg's business is any indication, barter and trade will be around for a long time to come.

25 Years Ago

The July 20, 1961 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Avco called for bids for construction of what will probably be the largest building built in Wilmington this year. A new lab and office is to be erected on the hill in back of the present offices and will occupy 79,100 square feet. Construction is scheduled to start late in August and be completed by next spring.

Little League tournament play against Assabet Valley included Mark Peters, Yankees; Peter Malatesta, Tigers; William Mutchler, Yankees; James Yentile, Red Sox; Stephen McNamara, Yankees; William Cawthorn, Tigers; Kenneth Simard, Yankees; David Trickett, Yankees; Donald Coolidge, Tigers; Robert Flores, Red Sox; Richard Dussault, Tigers; James Capozzi, Yankees; Paul Metcalf, Indians; Robert Finney, Indians. Alternates were Kevin Sullivan, Indians; William Rice, Tigers. Coaches were Anthony Toti and Anthony Toti Jr.

The price of a piggery license in Wilmington was upped from $4 to $15 with 11 licenses issued.

Atty. Joseph Courtney of Ledge-wood Road was to represent Gov. John Volpe at a special urban renewal conference to be held in Washington.

Thieves who used Interstate 93 made off with an unknown number of chickens from the farm of Alvin Richardson on Woburn Street.

Two hundred and twelve youngsters received polio vaccine at the board of health clinic held at the Wildwood School.

Pictured at the dedication of the new police station were six of the towns policemen - Jean Camber, Marilyn Lynch, Edith Ward, Grace Santos, Emily Landry and Maryann Langone.

First National Stores were offering eye round roast for 89 cents a pound, peaches four pounds for 49 cents and 100 extra green stamps with the purchase of a ten and one-half ounce jar of Dennis boned chicken.

Cynthia Hibbins weds Edward Mullin

Cynthia Ann Hibbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hibbins of Marion Street, Wilmington became the bride of Edward J. Mullin of Ford Hood, Killen, Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mullin of Winston Avenue, Wilmington on Sunday, June 22.

Mixed bouquets featuring red roses adorned the altar of St. Thomas Church, before which Father Kearney performed the early afternoon ceremony.

Cheryl DiTucci of Melrose served as maid of honor while the bridesmaids included Lynn Mullin, sister of the groom, Patty Wayman, Christine Johnson, cousin of the bride, Lisa Vieira, and Traci Hurd.

Cheryl Hibbins, sister of the bride acted as junior bridesmaid while Jacqueline Davis served as flower girl.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a full length satin and taffeta gown featuring a full hoop skirt with appliques, sleeves of chiffon and lace, and a six foot lace train. Her veil of netting and matching lace fell from a rhinestone tiara. She carried a cascade of white silk and colored roses.

The bride's attendants were attired in full length, taffeta gowns of rainbow colors featuring lace cap sleeves and full hoop skirts. They wore halos of white roses with ribbon matching the color of their gowns and carried matching fans of white and colored roses. All the attendants' gowns and headpieces were fashioned by the mother of the bride.

Robert Mullin served his brother as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Mark Adams, Mike Thibadeau, John Walsh, Billy Duggan, and Bobby Hibbins, brother of the bride.

Andrew Waisnor, cousin of the bride served as ring bearer. Scott Hibbins, brother of the bride, served as junior usher.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Sons of Italy Hall, Wilmington, where ceramic baskets of flowers, designed by the mother of the groom, adorned each table and Sound Decision provided music for dancing.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hibbins chose a full length, turquoise gown featuring a lace overlay and a matching jacket trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a white rose corsage with turquoise ribbons.

The mother of the groom was attired in a long mauve gown with a matching jacket. She wore a white rose corsage with mauve ribbons.

For traveling the new Mrs. Mullin chose a one piece gray and pink jumpsuit.

Following a wedding trip, the couple, both educated at Wilmington High School, now live in Killen, Texas, where the groom is stationed with the U.S. Army.

Boys capture Middlesex crown

The Wilmington Youth Soccer Association's boys under 14 squad last week won the Middlesex Youth Soccer League Division III championship.

The title game was a stunning 4-1 Wilmington win over an excellent Billerica II team. Billerica II earned its' slot in the championship game by winning the Division III title. Billerica II was undefeated and untied in 10 games during regular season play.

Wilmington earned its' shot at the championship game by winning the Division III B title. Wilmington had clinched the III B title the previous week with a 4-1 win over a tough Stoneham team.

The Stoneham game featured some great play by forwards Ryan Churchill, George Driscoll and Victor Pacheco. The stingy defense was anchored by fullbacks Brian Macdonald, Bobby Surran and David DiCenso. Midfielders Dennis Walsh and Eric Creeth were excellent all day, controlling much of the play, never allowing Stoneham to mount a serious threat. The title game was Wilmington's best all-around team effort of the season.

Billerica II opened the scoring early in the first half, and from that point on it was all Wilmington. Center halfback Brian Gillespie, playing perhaps his best game ever, was a controlling force throughout the game. Left wing Andy Parr played another outstanding game, scoring three goals and pressuring the Billerica defense on several occasions.

The other goal was scored on a tremendous kick by keeper Mark Bobek. Bobek lined up for a direct free kick approximately 55 yards from goal and drilled it home, just under the crossbar. Other standout performances were turned in by halfbacks Matt McManus and Richard Barletta. Fullback Kevin Barrett played strong defense all game, but particularly late in the game when Billerica was trying to rally. Center forwards Jerry Driscoll and Scott Brennan played the games of their lives, keeping continuous pressure on Billerica.

The following game reports were submitted by the respective coaches for the final weeks of Wilmington's traveling soccer program. Congratulations to each and every player and their coaches for a very successful season.

Boys under 12 I

The boys opened the State Tournament champions at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in strong fashion against Swansea; the South Coastal representative. The local entry was overpowering with a 5-0 victory. Goals were scored by John Lynch (2), Joey Catanzano, David Dussault and Jimmy DeMarco.

The goalscorers were assisted by the fine passes of Tom Zaya, Derrick Stokes and Brent Carbone. Midfielders Gerard Forgett, Christian Armata and Brian Wallace contributed by completely dominating Swansea in the center of the field.

Strong defensive performances were turned in by fullbacks Chris DeFrancesco, David Oatis and Tommy Killilea, helping goalkeepers John Martins and Eric Flynn gain their eighth shutout of the season.

After the game, the boys rushed back to the Holyoke Holiday Inn where they had an absolutely glorious celebration in the hotel's beautiful swimming pool.

The following day, the boys returned to Amherst to battle Newton, the talented Greater Boston Youth Soccer League representative. The Newton squad scored two goals in the first half, while the Wilmington attack was stifled by the exceptional goalkeeping and defensive play of the Newton Arrows.

The score remained respectable until the final 15 minutes of the game. At that time, the local team succumbed to the oppressive heat and torrid play of the opponent, as Newton scored several quick goals to defeat Wilmington by a score of 6-0. Shortly after the game, the Wilmington entry returned home as Newton went on to become the State Division champions.

After the initial disappointment of the loss, the boys were able to look back with pride and satisfaction at their journey on the long and eventful road to the State Tournament. Their parents and coaches are quite proud of the boys' hard work, their positive attitude and their accomplishments during this exciting and rewarding season.

Girls under 16

Wednesday, June 18, the Wilmington team took on Reading United at Shawsheen field in a makeup game. At stake was a chance to tie Woburn for first place in the division. The girls were up for the game, and score they did.

Lauren Scalesse scored on a feed from Jennifer DelNinno. Terry Murray scored on a breakaway from midfield. Debbie Dellascio scored on a feed from Lori Cormier. Barbara Langone curved a corner kick into the goal for a score.

Finally, Jennifer DelNinno scored on a cross from Debbie Dellascio. Denise Cosgrove was super as goalkeeper in repeatedly turning back Reading shots. Christine Bonarrigo, Kristen Catanzano and Julie Callahan were particularly effective in stopping the Reading offense.

Tied for first place, the Wilmington team had a playoff game against Woburn on Friday, June 20 at a neutral Billerica field. Terry Murray scored to give Wilmington a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Woburn tied the game up on a penalty shot to force the match into overtime. While the Wilmington team had plenty of shots on the Woburn goal, there were unable to score. Woburn clinched the victory when they scored on another penalty shot late in the second half of the overtime.

The entire team gave it all they had in this match. Denise Cosgrove was again spectacular in goal. Susan Killilea, Karen Lynch, Sheri Lucchini, and Kristen Southmayd were especially strong on the defense, while Debbie Dellascio, Lori Cormier, Jennifer DelNinno and Missy Jamerson were strong on the offense.

As a result of Friday's game and their second place finish, the Wilmington team played Wakefield in the Middlesex County Commissioner's match at Bedford Saturday, June 21. The superiority of this Division I team and the unfortunate sequence of back-to-back games for the Wilmington team resulted in a 5-0 loss. As a result of the previous night's game, it was not representative of the quality play that the team had shown during the season.

This team of 18 girls came from various backgrounds and played together for 11 weeks. They played with enthusiasm, determination and good sportsmanship throughout the season.

Girls under 10

Over the past few weeks the team has played some great soccer. Three weeks ago Wilmington played Billerica and won, 2-0 on goals by Shannon Jepson and Nancy Pote. The strong goalkeeping of Mary Armata in the first half foiled many Billerica chances. In the second half, Nancy Pote and Karen DeFrancesco held Billerica off to complete the shutout.

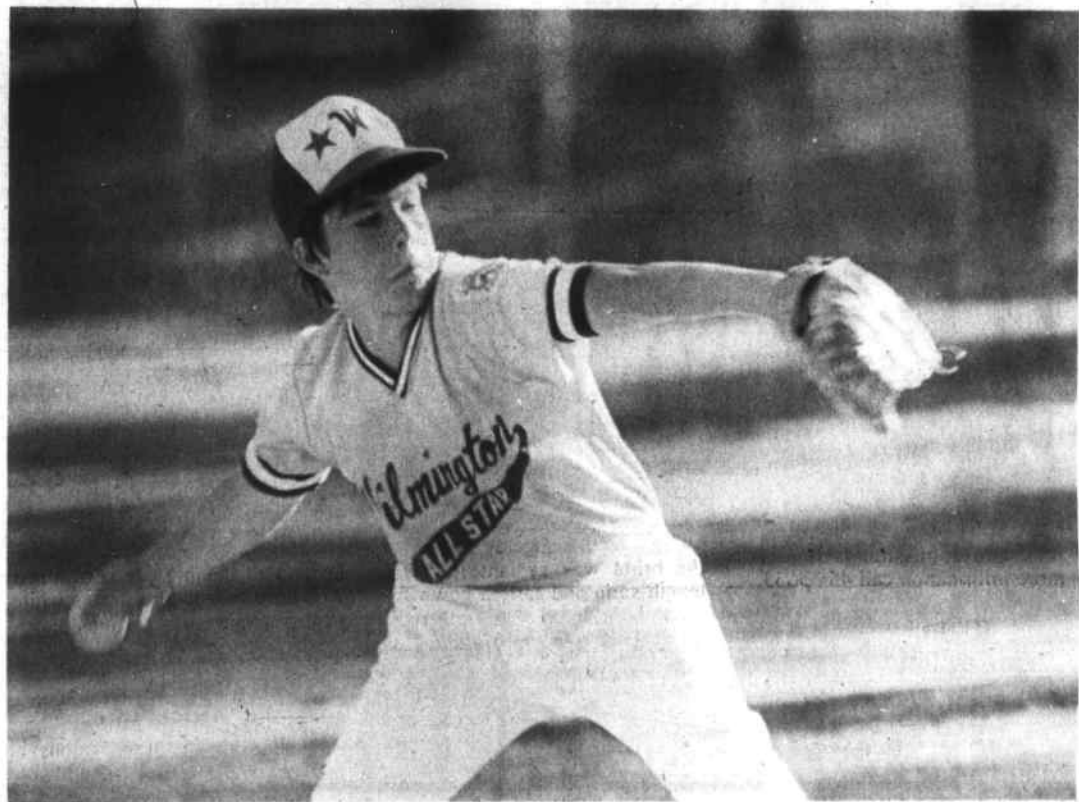

Standout performances from the fullback spots were turned in by Denise Langone, Amy Hermann, Anne Deislinger, Megan McCarthy and the ever-present Lynnette Sbano.

Bobby Fleming is welcomed at home after smashing a two-run homer in the second inning that gave the Wilmington 11-12 year-old Little League All-Stars a 7-0 lead over Assabet Valley in quarterfinal tournament action Friday night at Rotary Park. Fleming also lashed a double in the 11-2 Wilmington rout. Bobby, already 1-0 pitching in tourney play, will be the starting hurler when the local stars host Wakefield American tonight (July 16) in a 5:45 pm start at Rotary Park.

Major League softball all-stars

Wilmington 10 Stoneham 0

The Wilmington girls got off to a good start in the district playoffs with a very impressive victory over Stoneham. Tina Kelly allowed only two hits and three walks in going six innings for the shutout. She was backed by a great defense, led by Anna O'Donoghue, who had seven assists and six putouts. Anna also had a double, triple and two walks in four at bats with five RBI's.

Wilmington broke on top in the first inning with a run, then built on that lead with three runs in the fourth. The big inning was the fifth when Wilmington sent 11 batters to the plate. Angela Gage led off with an infield hit, Jessica Clearly reached base on an error, Sheila McEwen lined out to second base, Christina Potito reached on a fielders choice, then walks to Gina DeSantis and Britt Cronin forced a run home.

Jen Rago hit a single scoring two, Anna O'Donoghue hit a triple scoring two, and Diane Sullivan hit a double scoring one run.

The bottom half of the Wilmington batting order scored five runs on one hit and six walks. Other Wilmington All-Stars are Caryl Currier, Jenna Powers, Kara Swasey and Julie Robinson.

Sox champions

The White Sox defeated the Red Sox in a battle of evenly matched teams to win the Wilmington Senior League playoffs by scores of 4-2 and 4-1. In the two well played games, timely hitting and aggressive base running were the difference for the White Sox. The winning pitcher in the first game

Steadily improving Tewksbury wins again

Tewksbury won two games and tied one in Northeast Baseball League action last week, improving their overall record to 5-2-1 to move only one half game behind first place Chelmsford (6-2-1).

The Wakefield contest was an eight inning 3-3 tie that was called because of darkness. Tewksbury jumped out to a quick 3-0 lead in the first inning when Steve Gendron singled and scored on Chris Mader's booming triple to deep left. Mader then scored on a wild pitch. Pat Brooks then walked and eventually scored on an infield error. Starting pitcher Tom Gallella was outstanding, allowing only two earned runs in the first and third innings, with the other tally coming in the sixth frame to tie the game.

Gallella struck out five and walked only two. Kevin Harrington was outstanding on defense, making some spectacular plays in the late innings.

In a second place showdown with Westford on Thursday, Tewksbury came away with a big 7-5 victory. Starting pitcher Ed McGum went four innings, allowing four runs on four hits and five walks while striking out one.

Reliever Doug Boudreau came on in the fifth with the bases loaded and nobody out. The first Westford batter hit a line drive to John Miller's right, who then dove and caught the ball on a short hop, stood up and fired to Chris Mader who stretched far to his right, scooping up the low throw for the force out at the plate. Boudreau then struck out the next two batters to end the inning.

Hitting stars for Tewksbury were Mader, RBI triple, Jay Rideout, two hits, with two RBI's and Gendron's two-run double to ice the game in the sixth. Miller, who had an outstanding defensive game, also contributed with two singles, and secondbaseman Brooks made the play of the game with a leaping snare of a line drive to end the game.

The Dracut game Monday night was especially important to Tewksbury's players and coaches. Longtime fan Walter Barry had passed away the week before and the game was played dedicated to his memory.

Tewksbury came out fired up, scoring once in the first on a walk to Jay Rideout and a line drive double to left by Chris Mader, his fifth extra base hit in five games. In the second, Tom Gallella walked and scored eventually on a single by Neil Olson.

Third victory

Tewksbury pitcher Doug Boudreau raised his summer slate to 3-0 with Monday night's Northeast Baseball League victory over Dracut.

Tewksbury finally broke the game open in the third, scoring six runs. Rideout walked, Mader singled, Brooks singled (RBI), Gallella walked to load the bases, Kevin Harrington executed a perfect suicide bunt, Neil Olson hit a sacrifice fly, Gendron reached on an error and two more scored on a single to center by Miller.

Pitcher Doug Boudreau upped his record to 3-0 with one save, going the distance and allowing five runs, three earned, on eight hits, three K's and three walks.

The defensive play of the season came in the seventh when Tom Gallella went to deep left center to make a one-handed diving catch to rob Dracut's Joe Caligaeero of extra bases and stop a late game rally by Dracut with men on base.

Tewksbury plays Chelmsford Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at the Varney Field in Chelmsford. The Northeast All-Star game will be played at Wakefield High School Saturday, July 19 at 4:40 p.m.

Tewksbury split two games in Northeast competition this past week, losing a hard fought battle by a 2-0 decision to Lynnfield and beating archrival Wilmington, 5-4 Sunday night.

In the 2-0 loss to Lynnfield, pitcher Tom Gallella was outstanding in defeat, going the distance and allowing only two runs on two hits, two walks and striking out two.

Opposing pitcher Jeff Lentine was even tougher, blanking Tewksbury on two hits- a third inning single by John Miller and a seventh inning single by Jeff Larsen. Lentine struck out eight and walked only four in the victory.

Several Lynnfield rallies were cut short by Tewksbury's defense. In the first inning with runners on second and third and one out, Keith Krugh stabbed a one hop liner down the line, tagged third and threw home to catcher Steve Gendron who tagged the runner sliding for the final out.

Shortstop John Miller starred defensively, handling numerous chances without an error, and rightfielder Scott O'Brien made a spectacular catch of a line drive off the bat of Lynnfield's Grasso to rob him of extra bases.

In Wilmington Sunday night, pitcher Doug Boudreau pitched seven innings, giving up seven hits and four runs while striking out three and walking three in a very exciting 5-4 win over always tough Wilmington.

Tewksbury went up 1-0 in the second when catcher Chris Mader hit a towering drive to the fence in left-center for a double, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a perfect safety squeeze by Jeff Larsen. Wilmington tied the game in their half of the second on an RBI single by rightfielder Buonopane.

Tewksbury went up to stay in the top of the fourth when Chris Mader was hit by a pitch, went to second on a fielder's choice and scored while stealing third when the catcher's throw went into short leftfield with a close play at the plate.

In the top of the sixth, Tewksbury scored three more runs to go up 5-1. John Miller led off with a single, Charlie Gath singled and Pat Brooks laced a single to right for one run. Tom Gallella then roped a line double to left-center for two more runs to make it look like an easy victory for Tewksbury.

In the last of the seventh, Wilmington came storming back, scoring three runs to make it a close contest.

Third baseman Hayward reached on an error, Pelletier singled, Nally walked to load the bases after an infield out, another single by Russell scored a run. Two more runs scored on a long double to center by Moynihan.

Tewksbury then intentionally walked McMenimen to load the bases. Taylor then bounced a one hopper back to Doug Boudreau, who threw home for one out before Chris Mader rifled the ball to first for a sweet game ending doubleplay to nail down the victory for Tewksbury.

Inter-City baseball

Kennedy earns star berth

Last week the Wilmac Astros went 1-3 to begin the second half of play in the Inter-City league. The Wilmac nine showed remarkable improvement in league play.

The annual all-star game with the Boston Park League was postponed last Saturday, and will be played weather permitting this Saturday night in Melrose at 7:30. Rightfielder Jim Kennedy (385) will represent the Astros in this summer classic.

Summaries

Monday, July 7: A pair of two-run homers by Ricky Venezino and Bill Cooley sparked the Grannan Club to a 4-2 triumph over the Astros. Leftfielder Tony Statuto cracked his second homer of the season to pace the Wilmac Club. Joe Murray (1-2) went the distance for the first time this summer, while issuing two base on balls in his best outing to date.

Wednesday, July 9: League leading Melrose jumped to an early 6-0 lead in the first two innings enroute to a 7-4 victory over the last place Astros. Tim Budrewicz did not fair well in his initial start at home. Lefthander Mike Overlan pitched three and one-third innings of one hit, shutout ball in long relief, allowing the Astros to chip away at a 7-0 deficit. Tony Statuto blasted his third homerun of the season and second in two nights, a 400 foot blast in the fourth inning with a runner on.

The Astros scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh, but left the bases loaded in their quest to snap their five game winless streak.

Thursday, July 11: The Astros lost to the defending league champion Medford Mustangs for the third time this season, 6-4 in another close ballgame. Lefthander Mike Overlan (0-1) hurled five strong innings, while Jay Hanafin pitched one inning of shutout relief.

The Astros came back from an early 4-1 deficit to score three times in the seventh, keyed by a two-run double by shortstop Bob D'Ambrosio, but could not score the tying runs.

Friday, July 12: Jay Hanafin (1-3) tossed a strong nine-hitter and Matt Kmon powered a three-run homer to lead the Astros past the Somerville Elms, 5-4 at the North. In snapping a six game losing streak, the Astros played errorless ball for the first time this season.

Serge Clivio (2-2) and Barry Rosen (3-3) broke out of their recent hitting slumps to key a nine Sunday, July 13: Rain washed out the Astros encounter at Wakefield.

Wilmac manager Bob Dicey, shown restraining a frustrated player in Monday night action against the Somerville Elms, is hoping to get his Astros on track over the second half of the season.

Recreation sport clinics
The Recreation Department has two sport clinics for ages eight to 12 that will take place later this month.

Both clinics are conducted by WHS varsity coach Dick Scanlon. The baseball clinic runs from 9 to 11 a.m., July 21-25. The soccer clinic runs from 9 to 11 a.m., July 28-August 1. Each clinic will stress the very basic skills. Cost is $15.00 per clinic. Sign up in the Recreation office.

Hampton Beach
Due to the overwhelming success of the teen trips to Hampton Beach, the Recreation Department will enjoy its' sixth trip Tuesday, July 22. These trips are open to Wilmington residents and any people in grades seven through 12. Those under grade seven must be accompanied by an adult.

Register in person at the Town Hall, Glen Road Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. For further information, call the Recreation office at 658-4270.

Newport, R.I.
The Wilmington Recreation Department has started to plan for the fall trips for adults and families in Wilmington. The first trip is to beautiful Newport, R.I., Saturday, September 20. The group will tour

Narragansett Bay by boat, the Brick Market place by foot and the Marble House Mansion. There will also be a narrated bus tour along the mansion studded shoreline. Cost is $22.00 per person.

Disney World
The Wilmington Recreation Department is now taking a waiting list of those families who would be interested in going to Disney World during April school vacation next year. Further information will be forthcoming. Call the Recreation office at 658-4270 for further information.

To hire new assistant for housing authority

by Arlene Surprenant
WHA Executive Director Lillian Buckley may not only have an approximate $1,300 salary increase coming to her, but she will soon be able to crawl out from under a pile of paperwork thanks to a motion to hire a new assistant.

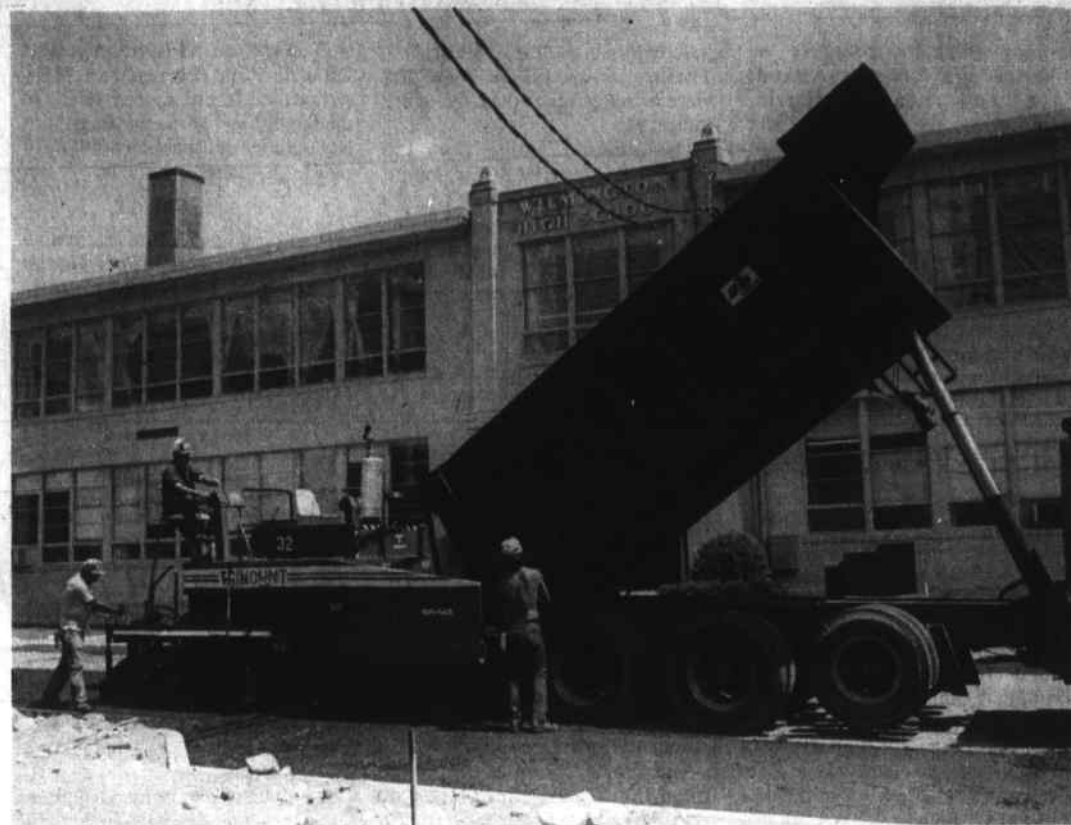

At Monday's meeting, housing authority members enthusiastically agreed to the increase effective July 1, bringing Buckley's salary up to $14,786.

Board members also agreed to hire a records administrator on a part time basis at $5.50 an hour, a dollar more than EOCD had recommended. Buckley said that though she had advertised the position, she received no resumes and had a call from only one applicant who "pretty much laughed in my face" when she heard the salary.

However, Buckley found an experienced bookkeeper on her own initiative and members made a motion to hire her on Buckley's recommendation. Buckley has been handling two jobs without added compensation since the resignation of assistant Ann Andersen last month.

Builder said willing to go 3-for-3 on low-income housing

by Arlene Surprenant
During a brief discussion of Wilmington's attempt to provide affordable housing to meet state requirements, WHA members were told of a local builder who was willing to build three low-to-moderate income homes for every three at market value that he builds. Executive Director Lillian Buckley made the statement Monday night. She told board members the information came from someone who wished to remain anonymous. Board members also made refer-

State sets quota for affirmative action

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington Housing Authority was informed by Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) Assistant Secretary Robert Pyne in a letter dated June 27 that Wilmington must set aside 13 percent of all state-assisted housing for minority applicants. Reportedly, the town's current minority population is only one percent.

According to the letter, the new Affirmative Action Goal (13 percent) reflects the regional market area percent. It will be used to establish Wilmington's affirmative action placement rate if the percentage of minority households residing in state aided elderly and family housing does not equal or exceed the 13 percent figure.

WHA Executive Director Lillian Buckley said Monday that this will entail "a massive amount of work on a very short notice." Setting the percentages now instead of in September as expected, said Buckley, is like hitting the housing authority "with a ton of bricks."

EOCD will hold several workshops at the end of summer to help local boards calculate the placement rate.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending July 15, Wilmington police officers responded to eight accidents, 27 alarms, 14 disturbances and four fires.

Other departments were assisted on three occasions, five arrests and five protective custody detentions were made.

Eight larcenies were investigated along with two assault and batteries, eight break and entries and five domestic problems.

Alert neighbors reported five incidents of suspicious activity, four trespassing complaints, six complaints involving traffic, three alcohol related complaints and six involving trailbikes were logged.

Two vehicles were reported stolen, five stolen vehicles were recovered, four threat complaints were taken along with reports of two missing persons and seven incidents of vandalism are still under investigation.

Among items reported stolen during the week were grass sod, gasoline, bike, cassette tapes, stereo, lawn mower and hoses.

Arrests

Wednesday morning after checking a suspicious car reported by a local plant, Officer Jim Peterson arrested a Lawrence man. Maximino Rodriguez of Spruce Street was charged with operating a motor vehicle without being licensed.

Also a computer check revealed an outstanding warrant issued by the Lawrence Police Department.

Later on Wednesday, a Tewksbury man was arrested after an incident on Bay Street in which a man was struck on the head with a shovel. Christopher Noll, 21, of Main Street, Tewksbury was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to murder.

The victim, John Johnson of Bay Street, Wilmington was taken to the Regional Health Center by the fire department ambulance. He was later transferred to Mass. General Hospital. The arrest and investigation was made by Sgt. Palmer and officers McCue, Cuoco and Hancock.

During last week's Fourth of July activities the newly formed Law Enforcement Explorer Post was busy assisting the regular department in parking cars and keeping the various posted areas free of illegal parkers. Eight members under the direction officers Joe Waterhouse and Steve LaRivee worked the nights of the fireworks.

These young people can be distinguished by their baseball caps and different badges. Their current project is to distribute data forms to each and every business in town in order to update the police records of business listings.

Drug hotline, 657-7149

A hotline phone is maintained at the department in the chief's office with a 24 hour recorder to enable citizens to leave anonymous messages concerning drug activity and for that matter any other important criminal activity about which the chief should be concerned. The number is 657-7149.

Retired Persons Installation

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS for 1986-87 of Chapter No. 1124, AARP Inc., was held recently at the Hillview Country Club. Seated: Gertrude Qualters, President Signe Bickell handing the gavel to incoming President Carolyn Norton. Standing: William Joyce, Katherine Kennedy, Margaret Laffoley, Installing Officer, Helen Fazio and Leonard Gebhard.

The last meeting of Chapter 1124, AARP, Inc.'s year was celebrated with an excellent luncheon on June 13 at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading, with Signe Bickell, President, presiding. It was followed by the installation of the 1986-87 officers conducted by Chapter past president and charter member Margaret Laffoley of Melrose. The officers and directors for Chapter 1124 are:

President — Carolyn Norton, Melrose; First Vice President — Foster Ford, Melrose; Second Vice President (and Membership Chairman) — Helen Fazio, Stoneham; Recording Secretary — Signe Bickell, Reading; Corresponding Secretary — Gertrude Qualters, Wakefield; Treasurer — Katherine Kennedy, Malden; Assistant Treasurer (Tours & Trips Chairman) — Leonard Gebhard, Melrose. Directors for one year — George Howe, Reading; Gladys

Jackson, Wakefield, Remembrance Chairman; Carol Johnson, Melrose, P.R., Publicity.

Directors for two years — Elizabeth Lovejoy, Melrose, Hospitality Chairman; Doris Gilbert, Wakefield; Alda Pinto, Reading, Literature.

Directors for three years — Leonard Dergay, Reading, Legislative Chairman; John Griffin, Wakefield, Auditor; Bessie McLellan, Wakefield, Ways & Means Chairman.

Nominating Committee — Donald Boyd, Lucille Boyd, William Joyce, Arnold Thompson, Nancy Fisher, all of Melrose.

Reservations (with a $100 deposit) can still be made through July for the September 23-25 trip to Samoset Resort Hotel in Rockport, Maine. Call Carol Johnson at 665-1796 or Kay Kennedy at 322-7313 for details. Total payment in full must be made by August 1.

There is still plenty of space for the one day trip to Heritage Plantation in Sandwich planned for Thursday, September 18, $31.95 per person cost. Call 665-1796 or 322-7313 for details. Deadline for this is August 1 also.

First meeting of Chapter 1124 AARP, Inc. will be Friday, September 12, 1:30 P.M. at the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church, 355 Franklin Street, Melrose. For membership details, call Helen Fazio at 438-3473.

Complain about weather

I'll admit it — I'm one of those people who's never satisfied with the weather. When it's too cold, I complain. When it's too hot and sticky, I complain. Lately it has been hot as blazes, and I don't like it.

I guess people like me complain about the weather because it is something in our lives that we simply have no control over. If we could wake up every morning and set the weather to our liking, there would be no reason to complain. A friend of ours once told us that we enjoy having something to belly ache about, that our lives wouldn't be complete if we didn't have the weather to kick around.

I think he was right. And the thing about complaining about the weather that's so much fun, downright pleasure-giving in the most lurid sense, is that you know it's going to change. Especially the darn weather here in old New England. What's the old saying? "If you don't like the weather here, wait five minutes..."

That adage may be true most of the time, but not recently. It seems that when we get locked into one of these hot weather patterns here in New England you can expect to stay in it for a long, long time. Well, for real heat and muggies haters like me it can seem like a long time. There are, I suppose, some of you who get true enjoyment out of sweating a lot. I don't. I prefer to remain cool, calm and collected. I don't stay that way in 97 degree heat. I tend to lose my composure very fast when it's very, very hot and sticky.

So in the great tradition of creative genius, I've been asked by my fellow heat-haters to come up with some ways to remain unflappable during this streak of hot weather that leaves us feeling languid and irritable.

There are, of course, the traditional ways of keeping cool in the summer. They include sitting in front of the air conditioner, finding a nice comfortable patch of cool green grass in the shade of a big oak tree, parking your derriere on a hammock on the back porch, and driving yourself to the beach. If you have a swimming pool in your back yard, that's even better than the beach most of the time.

There are drawbacks to these more conventional ways of — how do the teenagers describe it? — "chilling out." (I have always been able to imagine myself chilling "down," but frankly I'm still working on how to chill "out.") For example, sitting in front of the air conditioner often times lulls you off to sleep. I think it's that steady whirring noise an AC makes. Nods you right off in no time flat. This wouldn't be too bad if you were doing it in an effort to fall asleep, but most of the time you seek out the front of an AC while you're getting ready for work or to go out on a date. To be discovered by your wife or girlfriend sitting, naked and sound asleep, in front of the air conditioner when you are supposed to be hustling around to remain punctual can be extremely embarrassing. You can also miss important phone calls that way.

Who would ever think that there would be drawbacks to sitting or lying and snoozing under an old oak tree? There are plenty these days. I once heard a story about this guy who woke up and discovered that he'd been nearly eaten alive with bugs, come down with poison ivy and been robbed of his wallet and shoes, all because he'd sought out the comfort of an old oak tree's shade to escape a mid-July's heat wave. You'd probably be better off sitting out on the back porch. Except every time I do that, I end up feeling

This Wakefield lady loves life's challenges

By JIM ROUILLARD

There is a savvy young soprano in Wakefield who is not about to let a marmot walk off with her salami and last loaf of bread.

She has wrecked a bulletin board with a parachute, released a science fair winner stuck in his school locker, and struck a blaze inside Mount Osceola's fire tower.

Her range extends from High

Sierra to a Swiss salt mine, from Ginseng-Root cola to tales of 900 pound grizzlies. And whatever Judith White offers or engages in, the result is guaranteed to be first rate and fascinating.

The Wakefield resident is equally at home in a Schonbrunn palace or white water rafting the Shoshone River. A virtual vegetarian who offers the visitor natural Ginseng Root cola, she has sung amidst caviar and crystal chandeliers, and roughed it at 15,000 feet among hailstone and glacier.

But some torn cartilage in her leg — part of the reason for her changing the thrust of her career from physical education to music — does not mean that Judy White is just another athlete turned musician.

It is not nearly as simple as that, for her tastes and activities have always been vast, various and intertwined.

Ms. White, who grew up in Wakefield, is currently music teacher in the Wakefield elementary schools.

A former physical education instructor in her hometown's elementary system, White has picked and eaten her own basketball-sized mushrooms while climbing Mount Whitney, been chased by a half-ton grizzly bear in Glacier National Park, and knows enough to bury her food so that the marmots will not carry it off. She said the stocky, coarse-furred rodents, western cousins to the woodchuck, will chew through your tent in search of snacks, however, so you might as well leave the flap open if you go for a stroll.

On a return to her campsite, she added, she was told by nearby campers that they had watched in fascination while marmots ambled off carrying a salami and a loaf of bread from a third party's tent.

But the American wilderness is not Judy White's only domain. She has also toured Europe with the Boston

Wakefield lady

Conservatory's Concordia chorus, drawn from musicians all over the nation, sung in castles in Austria, Germany, Italy and Switzerland, cut three group records and brought her brilliant, clear and vibrant voice to a Viennese ball.

Certified to teach in five separate disciplines, Judy White began playing the piano at the age of five, and started her teaching career at age 10 at the Wakefield YMCA Leaders' Club. She has also taught at Wilbraham Academy and Springfield College, and was synchronized Swimming Commissioner for the YMCA's Northeast Region for four years.

The sports in which White engages: tennis, swimming, scuba diving, horseback riding, back packing and the 15,000 foot altitude ascents she modestly calls "hiking," comprise only a portion of her busy life.

She also appears in local musicals sponsored by the Wakefield Teachers' Association (WTA), and wrote the music for "Diary," a solo she is scheduled to perform in the WTA's upcoming musical "Trenton," set in New Jersey in 1776 among patriots and Hessian soldiers, and written by Wakefield teacher Gordon McRae.

It was while she was instructing Wakefield youngsters in exercise with a nylon parachute at the Hurd School, White said, that the chute billowed up, barely missed the schoolroom's light fixtures, and settled against the bulletin board, tearing away all the carefully arranged posters and notices.

Furthermore, while teaching at the former Lincoln School where space was at a premium, she said she had to improvise for the 600-yard walk-run because the school yard was not big enough. So she sent the children around the building to make up the 600 yards.

Puzzled that the kids were getting such poor times in the run, she asked them what was wrong. "Well, we have to crawl under the truck," they explained.

The truck was a delivery van that had pulled up on the other side of the building during the exercise.

A former violinist with the Greater Bostonians, the youth orchestra drawn from auditions throughout the Commonwealth, White now instructs Wakefield children in musical theory, rhythm, singing and classical listening. She said she loves to see the joy in their faces when they discover they can sing themselves — and the light that comes to their eyes when they hear serious music which delights them.

But her summers, virtually kid-free, White said, since "you need to get away from kids in the summer so you can be ready for them in the fall," are always devoted as much as possible to going west.

She tries to work in at least one visit to a dude ranch every year, if not a backpacking or horseback trip at high altitudes. Her mother, Marion White, also of Wakefield, joined Judy on one 10-day pack trip through Wyoming. "It was just up through the Continental Divide," White said, as casually as some might refer to riding a horse through the Middlesex Fells.

Touring Europe with Concordia had many memorable incidents, White said, but perhaps the creepiest was at a church in Bavaria, where all the dead princes and princesses are kept in glass caskets, and you can peer in upon their remains.

To enter the church's sanctuary, her group passed through a rain-streaked cemetery worthy of Baron Frankenstein's family plot, past the visible, princely mummies, to perform for a somber German audience dressed in black, white and gray.

Her most corrosive experience in Europe was certainly her tour of a Swiss salt mine, where her group had to don leather covering, including strapping on a leather seat for sliding down into the mine to prevent the salt from eating through their clothing.

Though she loved her European tour, Judy said, one gets the distinct impression her vacation place of choice would almost be the rugged beauty of the American West, among bison, pronghorn, bruin and marmot — no matter how fierce the grizzly, how greedy the rodent.

guilty. I think it's because I'm a workaholic, and sitting on the back porch too long make me feel as though the world is passing me by.

Now going to the beach doesn't leave me feeling guilty by no means. But I've yet to go to the beach this summer that one of several things hasn't happened. Either I end up sitting in a long line of traffic and my car overheats (there's nothing worse than sitting in a long line of traffic with the heater blasting in an effort to cool the engine down), end up getting a ticket for doing ten miles per hour over the speed limit by one of those summer rent-a-cops, or end up with no place to park my car (even if you do find a spot, it's going to cost you an arm and part of your leg to keep it there for the day). And once I've found a two-by-four patch of sand, the clouds inevitably roll in to spoil my chances of improving my tan. A pool in the backyard is definitely a better alternative, except you better be prepared to entertain every Tom, Dick and Harry in the neighborhood who also has the same experience when they drive to the beach.

There are a handful of less conventional ways to keep cool. There is the old trotting off to the cinema with a six pack of beer trick. Once you've mastered sneaking the brews into the movies, what more could you ask for? A good film, AC and a couple of cold ones taboot.

One of my favorite ways to chill out after taking a shower is sticking my head in the freezer. This method helps to lower your blood pressure and evaporate the excess moisture dripping around your hairline. I might add that this move is particularly effective just before blow drying your hair (that is, if you still blow dry your hair, since the mousse and spike look is in at the moment). A note in this matter, however: keep the freezer free of old food (it can spoil the chilling down effect when you have to smell that stuff) and be prepared to have a good excuse as to why your head is in the freezer when your wife or girl friend taps you on the shoulder from behind.

Although I haven't tried sitting on dry ice, I hear it can be very effective. I would think you'd want to do this with at least a pair of shorts on, however, since victims of Lucky Giovanni tell me it can hurt otherwise.

Taking a shower is not what you'd call a less-than-conventional means of cooling off, yet when it is done with a partner it can be a rather cooling and relaxing experience. Let's face it, we're all adults here. A word of caution: don't see Psycho III just before hopping into the shower. It could be a chilling experience that you'd rather not have.

If the shower routine fails to cool you off, there is another ounce of advice I could give you. Don't dry off. Instead, run, dripping wet, straight for the AC again. Turn it up to high and feel refreshed. You do, however, run the risk of catching a bad cold this way. But when you're desperate to cool off, who cares. Bring on the Contac.

I prefer the idea of lying on a big bed and having at least two beautiful women fan me. You remain cool and you can get a lot accomplished. You can either eat lunch, watch tv, read a book or conduct business this way. And there's nothing like talking to a friend on the phone while being fanned by two beautiful women.

If you don't have the luxury of an air conditioner or two lovely ladies to fan you, there is a solution to your body overheating. Go sit in your car and switch on the AC. Most cars have air conditioning, and it can be a great place to chill out. There may be a few drawbacks with this method, however, and I feel compelled to inform you of these. People in your neighborhood and passers-by will likely regard you stangely if you make this a habit. Let's face it, weirdos sit in cars when the cars aren't going anyplace. You may have some explaining to do to the police, but if you are hot enough, you'll try anything.

If you don't even have the luxury of an air conditioned automobile to cool you off, there's sucking on an ice cube. I find that sucking on ice cubes tends to cool down my entire body, if I give it enough time. When you are in a hurry you tend not to have the patience necessary to allow the ice cubes to work. You will often spit them out before they have a chance to do their thing.

Now if you have a lot of dough, think about what you can do to keep cool and dry. You can own your own boat, or charter one, if you don't have a captain's license, and sail a couple of miles out to sea, where you can drop anchor and enjoy those marvelous ocean breezes. Take a swim, if you are so moved. The chilly Atlantic water might actually be too cool for you, and then there is always the possibility of sharks. So you might want to stick with just enjoying those nice Atlantic breezes. A Crown Royal and Seven-Up wouldn't hurt, either.

A trip (or move, if you are truly desperate to cool off once and for all) to the North Pole would be nice. Or how about a trek over Greenland? I hear it's pretty cool there, even in the summertime.

If all else fails, just pretend that you absolutely adore the heat and humidity of summer. Have you ever noticed how people who make that ridiculous comment always seem to look so cool, calm and collected, even when they're standing out in the sun on a 100 degree day in July?

They make me sick.

FM TALK: A potpourri of thoughts crossed our gallivanting-around correspondent's mind this week. The following are just a few of them:

I owe Everett D. Longstreth, of Stoneham, an apology. I'd promised myself I'd mention Everett's popular big band, The Boston Name Band, in time for a concert they performed over the July 4th weekend in Revere, however, I wasn't able to keep that promise.

I'd like to take a moment to introduce you readers to Everett, in case you haven't already had the pleasure of meeting him and hearing the terrific sound of his band. A member of the teaching staff at the Boston Conservatory of Music, Mr. Longstreth has a long and varied history in the music business.

Just take a gander at some of his credentials: he was lead trumpeter and arranger for the Woody Herman Band; toured the world with the Sam Donahue-Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, with top stars such as Frank Sinatra, Jr., Helen Forrest and the Pied Pipers; appeared on the Ed Sullivan, Mike Douglas and Johnny Carson tv shows; was a member of the Myron Floren Orchestra of the Lawrence Welk Show; has performed locally at the Colonial and Shubert Theatres, Caesar's Monticelli, tv channel 2's Jazz Educational series; and is currently a member of the Herb Pomeroy Orchestra recordings and Sam Donahue Orchestra with Frank Sinatra, Jr., Tommy Dorsey and Herb Pomeroy.

According to Everett, "The Boston Name Band provides a wide variety of professional musical services for fundraising and special social events, for schools, colleges, businesses and corporations, weddings and private social functions."

The range of offerings includes soloists, trios, Dixieland and Jazz quintets and sextets, a special library octet and the full-size "Boston Name Band," with a library of special arrangements by Mr. Longstreth.

He adds, "This unique organization is made up of Boston's leading musicians, most of whom have played in world-famous 'name bands.' The music they play has been arranged specifically for this group by me. This combination, name players and special library, gives the band its distinctive style and provides its audience with an extraordinary musical experience."

The Boston Name Band has performed for various functions around the New England area, including the Norwood Bicentennial Ball, many fundraisers, weddings, bar mitzvahs, business functions and parties and public dances. Everett's band has also been seen on several New England Emmy Awards telecasts.

"During the summer months, the Boston Name Band plays a series of concerts in conjunction with the musicians union and the city of Boston, under the 'Summerthing' program," Everett notes.

The band has performed for numerous name acts, including Mel Torme, who specifically commented that the Boston Name Band "was the best band he had ever worked with for a one rehearsal, one show performance."

We're not finished hearing about Stoneham's Everett Longstreth, and if you happen to hear about one of the Boston Name Band concerts this summer, don't miss taking it in.

MORE FM TALK: A few more thoughts, in brief...

I've just finished reading Ernest Hemingway's new book, "The Garden of Eden." This one's been receiving a lot of mixed reviews, and perhaps rightly so. After at least a couple of years of undergoing major editing at Scribners, what remains of the 1500 pages of original manuscripts is enough to satisfy Hemingway lovers and will certainly start you wondering. The book was never actually finished, and begun well after Hemingway was drowning himself in alcohol, the book deals with offbeat subject matters like cross-dressing and sexual perversion. Well, all I can say is, in spite of the bad press the book has gotten, the worst of Hemingway is still better than ninety percent of whatever else is out on the shelves at this time. It still makes great summer reading.

If you're looking for something a tad lighter to read out by the pool this summer, pick up one of John D. MacDonald's Travis Magee novels. I've recently rediscovered them, and they are truly terrific summer reading also. ...A couple of in-

VOLUNTEERS FOR DENTAL STUDY

A free dental examination and $25 will be given to volunteers in a dental research study conducted by Forsyth Dental Center in Boston, leading non-profit oral health research and educational center.

The study will involve two visits of approximately one hour each to Forsyth which is located next to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, at 140 The Fenway.

Volunteers must be between the ages of 50 and 60 and have at least 10 natural teeth. No x-rays will be taken, and the examinations for samples of saliva, plaque and blood, are simple and painless. Participants will also be asked questions about their diet.

People interested in participating may contact Peggy Reska, Forsyth Dental Center, 140 The Fenway, Boston, Mass. 02115, or call her at (617) 262-5200, ext. 368, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

BLACK HOLES

The Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics invites the public to attend a free program in popular astronomy on Thursday evening, July 17, at 8:00, featuring a nontechnical lecture in astronomy, film, and telescopic observing, weather permitting.

The program begins at 8:00 with the lecture, "How to Recognize a Black Hole" by Jeffrey McClintock, an astrophysicist at the Center for Astrophysics. Following his talk, an astronomy film will be shown and the public will be invited to use the telescopes on the observatory roof, weather permitting.

Admission to the program is free and no tickets or advance reservations are required. Seating is limited and will be filled on a first-come basis. (Doors open at 7:30 p.m.) All age groups are welcome to attend, however, the lecture is intended for adult and high-school-age audiences.

The lecture is held in the Phillips Auditorium of the Center for Astrophysics at 60 Garden Street, Cambridge. The Center is located about one mile west of Harvard Square and may be easily reached by public transportation. Parking is available.

DRAGONS
Hammond Castle announces the second of its medieval festival weekends on July 26 and 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The castle grounds will once again be filled with all manner of medieval music, games, foods and crafts. Especially attractive to children will be the offerings of the museum's curator and director of education, John Pettibone.
During the festival, Mr. Pettibone will present entertaining and educational demonstrations on medieval arms and armour, and will co-ordinate a knighting ceremony. Younger children will be captivated by Mr. Pettibone's storytelling as he relates the tale of George and the Dragon, and then leads the children on a dragon hunt through the castle grounds.
Tickets for the festival are $5.00 for adults and $3.00 for children (6-12 years). Call 283-7673 for further details.
Hammond Castle Museum is a non-profit corporation located at 80 Hesperus Avenue, Gloucester.

AARP FALL TRIPS
Members of Chapter 1124, AARP, Inc. may not all be aware that reservations can still be made for the two fall trips planned by the Tour Committee under the chairmanship of Leonard Gebhard. National AARP members are welcome to come on this trip.
Full payments due by August 1 for the September 23, 24, 25 trip to the Samoset Resort Hotel in Rockport, Maine. Cost is $299 single, $229 double, and $209 triple. Call Carol Johnson at 665-1796 or Kay Kennedy at 322-7313 for further details. Or send check made out to Chapter 1124, AARP, Inc. to Mrs. Kay Kennedy, 192 Kennedy Drive, Apt. 404, Malden, Mass. 02148. There are now limited spaces available for this trip. Call now, don't delay.

The second trip planned by the Tours Committee is a one-day jaunt to the Heritage Plantation on Sandwich on September 18, Thursday, at a cost of $31.95. Lunch will be at the Daniel Webster Inn, in buffet style. Send check made out to Chapter 1124, AARP, Inc. to Mrs. Kay Kennedy, address as per above. Or put your reservation in now through Carol Johnson at 665-1796 or Kay Kennedy at 322-7313. Deadline for this one day trip is August 29.
The first meeting of the new season will be on September 12, at 1:30 P.M. held at the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church, 355 Franklin Street, Melrose. For those considering membership in this chapter, contact Helen Fazio, 438-4373 for further information. Now is the time to join!

ADOPTION
The Alliance for Children adoption agency of Wellesley is having an information meeting at its new location, 110 Cedar Street, Wellesley, on Tuesday evening, July 15 at 7:30 p.m.
Mrs. Filis Casey, Executive Director, and her staff will present the criteria, prerequisites, and process of international adoption. The Alliance for Children places babies and children of all ages with Massachusetts couples. Most of the children are from Latin America, although placements are also made from India and other countries, and of black and multi-racial children from the United States.

Currently the agency is particularly hoping to recruit couples to age 38 for its Colombian resources; couples up to age 45, who have been married five years, for its Chilean resource; and couples for children 4, 5, and 6 years old. The agency also processes parent-identified adoptions.
Couples who have already adopted will be present to talk about their experiences and to answer questions of the audience.
The meeting is open to the public, and there is no charge. For reservations, call 431-7148.

MEADOW GARDEN
Imagine yourself walking through a meadow filled with colorful wildflowers. You can enjoy these sights and sounds of summer in the Meadow Garden at the Garden in the Woods, Hemenway Road, Framingham.
Bright butterflies flit from Turk's-cap Lilies to Purple Coneflowers. In the sunshine brilliantly colored wildflowers glow in hues of raspberry, lavender, orange, white, blue, and gold. Many of the plants such as Blazing Stars, Wild Bergamot, Bee Balm, and Black-eyed Susans are four to six feet high with flowers as large as four inches in diameter, or flower stalks as long as ten inches.
A profusion of flowers bloom throughout the meadow from July through mid-September. During early summer white Ox-eye Daisies, Canada Lilies, and Stokes' Asters lead the parade. As July passes into August, Coneflowers, Cup Plants, Blazing Stars, and Butterfly Weed replace them. By September Asters, Ironweeds, Goldenrods, and Gentians dominate the landscape. As the early blossoms fade Goldfinch and other birds search the flower stalks for seeds.
During the summer and fall 30 species of showy wildflowers bloom in this quarter-acre meadow. In addition five native grasses provide a pleasing background for the brightly colored flowers. The Meadow Garden is an experimental, low-maintenance planting for open, sunny spaces with loamy soil, and is intended as a lawn alternative.

On Tuesday, July 22 at 6:30 p.m. David Longland, Garden Director, will discuss how he created the meadow, why he selected certain species, and his planting methods. This two-hour special program will meet first in the Meadow Garden for an on-site walk and then go to the Visitors Center for a slide presentation. Program: The Meadow, Tuesday, July 22, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Fee $7, $6 members.
The Garden in the Woods is open Tuesday - Sunday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Closed Monday. Fee: $4, $3 seniors and children. Informal Walks from June through October on Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. for individuals who want to stroll through the Garden with a guide. Free with admission. 'Club Paradise'
'Mona Lisa'

Club Paradise starring Robin Williams, Jimmy Cliff, Twiggy, Peter O'Toole, Rick Moranis, Adolph Caesar, Eugene Levy. Directed by Harold Ramis. Produced by Michael Shamberg. Screenplay by Ramis and Brian Doyle-Murray. Rated PG-13 (profanity).

Club Paradise is kind of what you'd expect to meet at a singles' only resort — it's pretty to look at, moves quickly, and is as vacant as the stereotypical blond(e) surfer. What is surprising is that director Harold Ramis amassed such an eclectic cast for this sandy diversion. Robin Williams plays the Chicago firefighter who takes his insurance settlement from an injury and retires to a tropical island. It is there he throws in with singer Jimmy Cliff to save the dilapidated Club Paradise from the most overused bad guy of the 20th century — the crooked land developer, played with one note by Adolph Caesar.

And, as the saying goes, there really is nothing new under the sun, as most of the jokes are of the hackneyed and slapstick variety. Unfortunately, the performers are given such one-dimensional roles and the yucks are so few and far between, that this comedy fizzles instead of sizzles.

Mona Lisa Starring Bob Hoskins, Cathy Tyson, Robbie Coltrane, Michael Caine. Directed by Neil Jordan. Produced by Stephen Wooley and Patrick Cassavetti. Written by Jordan and David Leland. (Profanity, violence, adult situations).

In the dark and gritty world of London's purveyors of sex, writer/director Neil Jordan has given birth to a modern film noir, full of tragedy and undertones of humor.

But, while Jordan may have created this masterpiece, it is the barrel-chested, balding Bob Hoskins who breathes life into it. Hoskins, who won the best-actor award at the Cannes film festival for his performance, is at once violent and vulnerable, the James Cagney of the 1980s.

He portrays a convict just out of jail who is given the job of driving a high-priced call girl around to her appointments by his loud-mouthed, crude sex peddler friend, played by Michael Caine. But Hoskins, a naive romantic despite the hardened exterior, is won over by the prostitute, played with sleek loveliness by Cathy Tyson.

As Hoskins becomes further embroiled in the life of a woman he has idealized, the title song by Nat King Cole, so tightly woven into this film, poses the bitter question that brings this story full-circle. "Are you warm? Are you real, Mona Lisa? Or are you just a cold and lonely lovely work of art?"

Short Takes
About Last Night could be the signature film of love stories for this decade, as it deals with young people afraid of commitment. The language is as raw as the sentiment, but the humor alternates nicely between intelligent and intense. Rated R.

Big Trouble in Little China, a flick high on action and low on substance, is too convoluted and silly to be a decent dose of escapism. The funny concepts, such as Kurt Russell's parody of the macho American hero, is lost in a nearly indecipherable storyline. Rated PG-13.

Under the Cherry Moon is the kind of stupefyingly bad picture that causes your eyes to glaze over and your mind to wander aimlessly. While the black and white photography is pretty enough, there is no plot to speak of, less acting ability and most of the costumes appear to have been made out of lamp shades and draperies. In the future, Prince should not be allowed to direct, let alone act. Rated PG-13. X

Ruthless People is a fast paced, coarse, irreverent comedy that never loses its ability to make you laugh, even as the antics become more outrageous. A modernization of O. Henry's "Ransom of Red Chief," it's scurrilous Danny DeVito who refuses to pay two desperate young kidnappers to release his wife, a flashy, loud-mouthed Bette Midler. Rated R.

Labyrinth is an aggressive, active fantasy that is the answer to every daydreamer's prayers. Jim Henson has created a perfect playland in which David Bowie is at his best as a dangerous goblin king amid a population of sophisticated puppets. Rated PG.

American Anthem has a computerized script that follows all the rules for making a 90-minute music video. While one gymnastic feats are interesting, the rest of the film is not. Rated PG.

ISLAND ROMANCE... Robin Williams stars as ex-Chicago fireman Jack Moniker who encounters an altogether new flame named Phillipa Lloyd (Twiggy), when he becomes a partner in a run-down tropical island resort in the new Warner Bros. comedy "Club Paradise."

Running Scared doesn't make it as a good cops caper or as a comedy. There just isn't enough plot. However, Billy Crystal is surprisingly tough as a detective from Chicago, and Gregory Hines is funnier than you'd expect. It's too bad the direction and script couldn't match their pace. Rated R.

The Karate Kid II starts out as a better-than-average family flick, but it can't hold its own against the original. Noriaki "Pat" Morita and Ralph Macchio are as charming as ever, but the plot eventually decays into melodramatic hog wash. There are some rousing moments, but they will probably appeal more to a pre-teen crowd than adults. Rated PG.

Psycho III is yet another installment in the saga of Norman Bates an anti-social guy with a mommy (or is it mummy?) problem This episode is better than the last Psycho flick, but enough is enough. If you're looking for a cheap thrill, this will do the trick, but most of this flick has been done before, and better. Rated R.

Ferris Bueller's Day Off is a giddy monument to those of us who like to take a few moments to enjoy life. Director John Hughes certainly hit comedic paydirt with Mathew Broderick as the truant teen who nimbly holds his own in an adult world. Rated PG.

Legal Eagles is what Hollywood studios pray for. Three gorgeous, talented stars (Debra Winger, Daryl Hannah and Robert Redford) a funny, intelligent mainstream script and high production values. Commercial? Sure. But entertaining and absorbing? You bet. Rated PG.

Retired Men's Club

An appreciation of what goes into the producing of a TV show was gained by the members of the Retired Men's Club of Wakefield when they were addressed on July 9 by Cliff Allen of Channel 38. With approximately 50 slides, he presented a tour of the studios in Brighton to show the complicated technology and the human labor that is utilized in day-to-day telecasting at Channel 38.

The men were impressed with how much goes on behind the scenes of the shows that seem to be done so effortlessly when they appear on the home TV screen. Mr. Allen is producer of the programs "Ask the Manager" and "38 on Sports." He introduced his subject by mentioning how many Boston TV stations have been sold, with a resultant change of management, within the past two or three years, a phenomenon that is happening in cities throughout the country.

During the business part of the meeting, four new members were welcomed into the club; Nobel E. Hamilton of Middleton, Arthur S. Hayden of Reading, Ernest Indelicato of North Reading and John J. Kondon of Peabody. Twenty-one birthdays were recognized. Door prizes were won by Allison Hayes and President George Richards.

Since the camera, stamp collecting and bowling clubs are on vacation for the summer, there were no reports from these clubs. The band is doing several performances this summer. The travel club is very active. A trip to Kennebunkport, Maine, has been arranged for July 24. The trip includes a visit to the Trolley Town Museum, lunch at Yokum's Restaurant and a visit to Whipple House in Portsmouth; cost is $20. Signups are being taken.

A trip to George's Island is being planned in August at a cost of $3; the exact date is not yet available. The Bermuda and New York City trips are fully subscribed and have waiting lists.

Despite hot weather, vacations and other distractions of summer, approximately 200 retired men from the "Greater Wakefield" area attended the meeting. The club meets on the second and fourth Wednesdays throughout the year; all retired men are welcome to attend the meetings and hopefully join this club of 700 active men who are enjoying their retirement.

The next meeting on July 23 will feature Bob Jones, a Reading artist. "By popular demand," he will be making a second appearance before the club. He presents an extremely interesting and entertaining demonstration showing how an artist creates and executes a painting, with a running commentary on what he is trying to achieve with the different strokes and colors he is using. If you're a retired man, join us on July 23 at the First Parish Congregational Church in Wakefield.

Take pride in Bald Eagles

Eight bald eagle chicks, a gift from Nova Scotia to help restore the national symbol, arrived at Hanscom Airfield near Bedford on June 20, where they "cleared" Customs like any international traveler, passed inspection by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and veterinarians from Tufts University, and had "Take Pride in Bald Eagles" signs placed on their flight cages. They were then taken to their man-made nests atop a tower at the Quabbin Reservation in western Massachusetts where they will be cared for until they can fly and forage for themselves.

The 6-to-8 week old eaglets were escorted from Nova Scotia by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist Richard Dyer and Massachusetts Eagle Project Leader Jack Swedberg, who had both helped collect the eaglets from their nests. The men and eagles were flown to Massachusetts in the corporate jet of Wyman-Gordon, Inc., a Worcester-based company that manufactures forgings for aerospace and diesel engines worldwide.

J. Richard Bullock, president of the company that was established in 1883, said the plane was made available because of Wyman-Gordon's "history of keen interest in the quality of life and the environment. This project is exceedingly worthwhile, and we are happy to play a part in the restoration of our wildlife and the pristine habitat they need."

This is the fourth year that Massachusetts has received young eagles from Nova Scotia under an agreement forged by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. A similar agreement will bring 12 eagles to Pennsylvania from Saskatchewan on June 27 and 10 or 12 to New Jersey from Manitoba on July 11 or 12. The hope is that the eagles will return to their release sites to nest in 4 to 5 years and repopulate areas in the Northeast where they were virtually eliminated as a breeding population because of habitat loss and the now-banned pesticide DDT.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

When readers of this column meet me for the first time, some of them tell me that they enjoy reading Woodchips and that I must be a wonderful person. Truthfully folks, I don't suffer from any headaches because of a "halo" around my head. Maybe some of you will form a different opinion of me after reading this chip. I love parties — especially birthday festivities — but I'm sure glad that the 4th of July celebration is over. I don't know why laws are passed that are flagrantly ignored by so many. The sale, purchase and shooting off of fireworks is banned by law (except by special permit). My street and general neighborhood area had more sustained noise than I heard in many battles in WW II! When I was a kid the loudest noise that the kids could make was from a "Sparkler" or from those giant fire-crackers called "Ladyfingers." This year someone was shooting off "Block Busters." My dog spent a week sleeping under the bed with her paws around her ears. My own cousin Maureen called me a "weirdo" because I remonstrated about her son's excessive noise. "Don't you know it's our nation's birthday — the 4th of July? Kids are supposed to shoot off fireworks." "Gee, thank you for telling me Maureen," I told her. "I must be doing things all wrong — you see, I started the day by going to church and thanking God for this wonderful country of ours. In the afternoon, I watched a parade, then listened to a band concert on the town green. At night I watched the fireworks set off by people who don't throw them at dogs like your kids have been doing all week. And, by the way Cousin, "Old Glory" is flying from the flagpole on my lawn. Now, if what I have been doing is all wrong and square — well, Maureen, that's what I am, "square!"

My uncle John Shea is thinking of marrying a widow. He told me, "I'd rather be a widow's second husband than her first." His pal Rowan Fitzgerald said that his great grandfather worked in a brewery when he slipped and fell into a mixing vat. They tried to save him but he kept pushing them away and drowned. He was cremated and the fire burned for six days. My wife asked a dress shop manager in Reading if she could try on the blue dress in the window. "By all means, do," he exclaimed, "who knows, it may stir up a little business!"

Here's that menace again. I came home from work and Dennis was over at my house watching the baseball game on TV. "What's the score?" I foolishly asked. "7 to 4," he replied. "Who is ahead?" "Seven," he shouted. A Scotsman was dying and his wonderful wife Mary was reading to him by candlelight. After a while she said, "Angus dear, I have some work to do downstairs so, if you feel yourself slipping away, please blow out the candle!" My cousin Tom O'Malley has gone to his "eternal rest." He got a government job in Washington, D.C. Folks, never retire unless you can adjust to "drinking coffee" on your "own time!" Johnny Ave, the bartender said to me, "Woodchipper, if you came here to forget, please pay when served."

There are many wonderful people in the Middlesex East area who willingly give of their time and energy to help the less fortunate. Consider the Shriners. There is more than fun, frivolity and fezzes with these dedicated members. They support more than 20 hospitals in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. The Shriners, God bless them, support all these hospitals from their dues and fund-raising activities. This is almost unbelievable, the "charge" for medical services is absolutely "zero!" One does not have to be a kin of a Shriner. The doors are wide open to children of all races and ethnic backgrounds and it's all free of charge. Shriners everywhere, "You're Wonderful!"

Anyone who was brought up on a farm knows that a cow is always milked from the "udder" side. Derek Binding of Winchester has joined the Marines, and is in Boot Camp at Paris Island. I remember a drill sergeant there who told recruit Wally Hill, "When I give the command 'Eyes Right,' I want to hear your eyeballs click!" Folks, God can do wonders with a broken heart, if you just give Him all the pieces. We sure are fortunate to have so many fine restaurants nearby. I ordered oyster stew in a restaurant in Boston last week and the waiter served it and said, "Sir, if you're lucky you may find a pearl." A few minutes later I called the waiter and said, "Has anyone ever been lucky enough to find an oyster?" An echo is the only thing that can cheat my wife out of having the last word.

I walked into a drug store near a church Sunday morning and asked Jimmy Fanikos, a pharmacist to change a dime for two nickels. He did, and in handing them to me said, "Here you are Woodchipper, I hope you enjoy the sermon!" My wife Kathy bought a beaver fur coat at a yard sale. She asked the old timer selling it if the coat would stand the rain. "Lady," he said, "have you ever seen a beaver with an umbrella?" I went into a Woburn pet store to buy a canary for my wife Kathy's birthday. I told the clerk that it must be a beautiful singer. I brought it home and it was indeed a beautiful singer, but my wife noticed that it hopped around on one leg. "Why you idiot," she screamed, "that bird is lame, bring it back!" The kind clerk understood and changed it for another canary, then he added, "What the heck did your wife want anyway, a singer or a dancer?"

Years ago when I was a door-to-door salesman, I asked a young boy sitting on the front steps, "Hey kid, is your mother home?" "Yes she is," he replied. After five minutes of ringing the door-bell then rapping, knocking and almost kicking the door down, I turned and said, "Hey, I thought you said your mother is home?" "She is," said the smarmy aleck grinning from ear to ear, "but I don't live here. My house is at the end of the street." I gave him something to remember me as a present, a "leaky fountain pen."

If you ever have to make a speech, PLEASE make it short, concise, and to the point. Many speakers exhaust their audiences before they exhaust their subjects. Not many more souls can be saved after a 10-minute sermon.

teresting films to catch this weekend: "Back To School," with Rodney Dangerfield, if you're in the mood for screwball comedy; "Legal Eagles," with Robert Redford, if you're in the mood for more sophisticated comedy; and "Psycho III," with Anthony Perkins, if you're up for some good scary laughs.

I'm still shaking my head when it comes to the Red Sox. I'm one of those fans who loves a winner, but I'm not going to set myself up for a major letdown. I'll get really excited well after the all-star break. That's when the true test of their mettle will come. ...Another wonderful way to spend a summer evening: a concert at Great Woods. I've been hearing nothing but raves for this outdoor concert arena. There are still many great acts on their way to Great Woods, and plenty of tickets still available.

Coming up in future Rovings: a return visit with horror writer

Stephen King, and an exclusive interview with Frank Sinatra's private pilot.

From the Connecticut River to Cape Cod Bay

A trail of N. E. vacation ideas

Where can you tour a WWII battleship, sneer at a shark, talk politics to a Pilgrim and feel like a millionaire?

Southeastern New England ... on the Americana Trail.

The "trail" was really created by the hundreds of thousands of visitors who have followed the southern coast route through New England to get to Cape Cod and the Islands. Formalized in 1973, it links together more than 30 major sightseeing attractions and 365 years of American history.

Starting at the Connecticut River, the trail roughly follows Interstate 95 through southeastern Connecticut including New London and Mystic; on through "south country" in Rhode Island; through Newport and Providence and then continues along Interstate 95 to Fall River and New Bedford, Mass. swinging up through cranberry country to Plymouth, then finally to Cape Cod and the Islands.

In places, the "trail" meanders a bit to include some interesting things of note but, by and large, the beauty of the area is that everything — and there's a lot of things to see and do — is easily accessible from major highway arteries.

Ready for a quick armchair tour? Hang on and let's go!

Most people approach the trail from the west — at New Haven, Ct. There's nothing really magical about New Haven that makes it the gateway to the Americana Trail. However, the city does mark the great divide between what is essentially suburban New York and the real New England.

What is magical and worth an exit off I-95 is the Connecticut River Valley which you approach shortly after leaving the city.

You can discover both a beautiful part of New England and a bygone era by taking an old fashioned steam train from the Essex Depot. The pufferbelly takes you along the river to the small town of Deep Water, Ct., where you can return, if you like, by riverboat.

The trail continues through New London, Ct., home of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, and Groton, the submarine capital of the world. Discover what life on a submarine is really like by touring the WWII sub, U.S.S. Croaker, moored here and the U.S.S. Nautilus, the first nuclear submarine, close by.

If there's time for a swim, head to Ocean Beach Park, just south of New London on the Long Island Sound. It has a mile-long boardwalk, freshwater pool, waterslide and rides for the kids.

At Mystic, Ct., discover the seagoing life — both under the water and on top — at the Mystic Marine Aquarium and the Mystic Seaport.

At the aquarium, which is within sight of Interstate 95, marvel at over six thousand specimens of marine life including the largest sharks in New England. Whales, dolphins and sea lions give hourly performances in the marine theatre inside, while outside you can see all kinds of seals and sea lions in their natural setting on the 2.5-acre Seal Island.

Mystic historic seaport, nearby, is the nation's largest maritime museum encompassing 17 riverfront acres and over 200 different vessels. The historic seaport captures the life and romance of a 19th century New England seaport. You can climb aboard historic ships like the Charles W. Morgan, the last remaining wooden whaleship, and be introduced to working craftsmen busy restoring and maintaining the historic ships in 19th-century style. The complex has a planetarium, children's museum and steamboat cruises, along with an impressive calendar of events.

From Mystic, take Interstate 95 to Westerly, R.I. Turn off here onto Route 1. That will take you past the splendid, unspoiled beaches of "South Country" Rhode Island.

From here you have a choice of two routes. You can proceed directly to Newport via Route 138 over the Jamestown and Newport bridges. Or you can continue north, getting back on Interstate 95, to Providence and northern Rhode Island.

Newport, R.I., has long been a playground for the rich. But you don't have to be a millionaire to feel like one for the day.

Start your "million dollar" tour by visiting some of the fabulous Gilded Age mansions, Belcourt Castle, once home to the Belmonts and Vanderbilts, has a particularly fine art collection, while at Mrs. Astor's Beechwood, costumed guides recreate the atmosphere of the summer social season of 1891.

A visit to Hammersmith Farm, on the other hand, brings back memories of the more recent Kennedy era when the Auchincloss estate was the site for both the wedding reception of John F. Kennedy and Jacqueline Bouvier, daughter of Mrs. Auchincloss, and later a "summer white house" for the

By ANTHONY MANCONI

When readers of this column meet me for the first time, some of them tell me that they enjoy reading Woodchips and that I must be a wonderful person. Truthfully folks, I don't suffer from any headaches because of a "halo" around my head. Maybe some of you will form a different opinion of me after reading this chip. I love parties — especially birthday festivities — but I'm sure glad that the 4th of July celebration is over. I don't know why laws are passed that are flagrantly ignored by so many. The sale, purchase and shooting off of fireworks is banned by law (except by special permit). My street and general neighborhood area had more sustained noise than I heard in many battles in WW II! When I was a kid the loudest noise that the kids could make was from a "Sparkler" or from those giant fire-crackers called "Ladyfingers." This year someone was shooting off "Block Busters." My dog spent a week sleeping under the bed with her paws around her ears. My own cousin Maureen called me a "weirdo" because I remonstrated about her son's excessive noise. "Don't you know it's our nation's birthday — the 4th of July? Kids are supposed to shoot off fireworks." "Gee, thank you for telling me Maureen," I told her. "I must be doing things all wrong — you see, I started the day by going to church and thanking God for this wonderful country of ours. In the afternoon, I watched a parade, then listened to a band concert on the town green. At night I watched the fireworks set off by people who don't throw them at dogs like your kids have been doing all week. And, by the way Cousin, "Old Glory" is flying from the flagpole on my lawn. Now, if what I have been doing is all wrong and square — well, Maureen, that's what I am, "square!"

My uncle John Shea is thinking of marrying a widow. He told me, "I'd rather be a widow's second husband than her first." His pal Rowan Fitzgerald said that his great grandfather worked in a brewery when he slipped and fell into a mixing vat. They tried to save him but he kept pushing them away and drowned. He was cremated and the fire burned for six days. My wife asked a dress shop manager in Reading if she could try on the blue dress in the window. "By all means, do," he exclaimed, "who knows, it may stir up a

Here's that menace again. I came home from work and Dennis was over at my house watching the baseball game on TV. "What's the score?" I foolishly asked. "7 to 4," he replied. "Who is ahead?" "Seven," he shouted. A Scotsman was dying and his wonderful wife Mary was reading to him by candlelight. After a while she said, "Angus dear, I have some work to do downstairs so, if you feel yourself slipping away, please blow out the candle!" My cousin Tom O'Malley has gone to his "eternal rest." He got a government job in Washington, D.C. Folks, never retire unless you can adjust to "drinking coffee" on your "own time!" Johnny Ave, the bartender said to me, "Woodchipper, if you came here to forget, please pay when served."

There are many wonderful people in the Middlesex East area who willingly give of their time and energy to help the less fortunate. Consider the Shriners. There is more than fun, frivolity and fezzes with these dedicated members. They support more than 20 hospitals in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. The Shriners, God bless them, support all these hospitals from their dues and fund-raising activities. This is almost unbelievable, the "charge" for medical services is absolutely "zero!" One does not have to be a kin of a Shriner. The doors are wide open to children of all races and ethnic backgrounds and it's all free of charge. Shriners everywhere, "You're Wonderful!"

Anyone who was brought up on a farm knows that a cow is always milked from the "udder" side. Derek Binding of Winchester has joined the Marines, and is in Boot Camp at Paris Island. I remember a drill sergeant there who told recruit Wally Hill, "When I give the command 'Eyes Right,' I want to hear your eyeballs click!" Folks, God can do wonders with a broken heart, if you just give Him all the pieces. We sure are fortunate to have so many fine restaurants nearby. I ordered oyster stew in a restaurant in Boston last week and the waiter served it and said, "Sir, if you're lucky you may find a pearl." A few minutes later I called the waiter and said, "Has anyone ever been lucky enough to find an oyster?" An echo is the only thing that can cheat my wife out of having the last word.

I walked into a drug store near a church Sunday morning and asked Jimmy Fankos, a pharmacist to change a dime for two nickels. He did, and in handing them to me said, "Here you are Woodchipper, I hope you enjoy the sermon!" My wife Kathy bought a beaver fur coat at a yard sale. She asked the old timer selling it if the coat would stand the rain. "Lady," he said, "have you ever seen a beaver with an umbrella?" I went into a Woburn pet store to buy a canary for my wife Kathy's birthday. I told the clerk that it must be a beautiful singer. I brought it home and it was indeed a beautiful singer, but my wife noticed that it hopped around on one leg. "Why you idiot," she screamed, "that bird is lame, bring it back!" The kind clerk understood and changed it for another canary, then he added, "What the heck did your wife want anyway, a singer or a dancer?"

Years ago when I was a door-to-door salesman, I asked a young boy sitting on the front steps, "Hey kid, is your mother home?" "Yes she is," he replied. After five minutes of ringing the door-bell then rapping, knocking and almost kicking the door down, I turned and said, "Hey, I thought you said your mother is home?" "She is," said the smarm aleck grinning from ear to ear, "but I don't live here. My house is at the end of the street." I gave him something to remember me as a present, a "leaky fountain pen."

If you ever have to make a speech, PLEASE make it short, concise, and to the point. Many speakers exhaust their audiences before they exhaust their subjects. Not many more souls can be saved after a 10-minute sermon.

From self-help to American jazz

Have you ever noticed when you have a problem, how it helps to talk with someone who has had similar problems? Simply finding others who have "been there" and finally realizing that "you are not alone" can in itself be a great relief. Mutual help support networks ("self-help" groups) do this and more. "Self-help" is a growing movement in Massachusetts as in the rest of the country.

In order to inform citizens in the Commonwealth of the variety of "self-help" groups available, Mass. Cooperative Extension has recently published the second edition of a directory of mutual help support networks throughout the State. This 96-page directory is available free of charge from the Middlesex County Extension office located at 105 Everett St., Concord, MA 01742.

The self-help movement grew rapidly during the 1970's in this country, and these member-run, peer-oriented groups have come to be recognized as a valuable component of the overall network of human services. The directory lists groups throughout the state in twelve categories: addictions, bereavements, disabilities, domestic violence, health, mental health, parenting, seniors, separation/divorce, sexuality, singles, and women.

Coming Attractions

American Celebration

Monadnock Music in Peterborough, New Hampshire will open its 20th season on August 2 at 8:30 PM, in the Peterborough Town House with an American Celebration featuring the music of George Gershwin, Aaron Copeland, Virgil Thomson and James Sellers with the Monadnock Music Orchestra.

For information on this concert and the entire Monadnock Music season, call (603) 924-7610 or order tickets directly through Concertcharge (617) 497-1118 in Boston.

Castle Hill Festival

On July 18 and 19, at 8:30 PM, The Italian Garden at Castle Hill, Ipswich will be the setting for a Jazz Ball. The New Black Eagle Jazz Band will join Waldo's Ragtime Orchestra and the Gotham City Jazz Band for the 4th annual Jazz Ball under the stars in the Italian Garden.

Reserved seating at cafe tables is $20 and $17.50. Reserved auditorium seating is $15. General lawn seating sold at the gate at 6 PM, day of performance only, is $10. Tickets are available at the Castle Hill Box Office. For information, call 356-4070.

From self-help to jazz under the stars, COMING ATTRACTIONS has a little something for all during this summer. But we are always on the prowl for events of interest of all. If you know of something along these lines, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. Helping others find about matters is our largest concern.

Horse & Carriage Weekend

The sound of wagon wheels on cobblestones will echo at Mystic Seaport July 19 and 20 during the museum's first Horse and Carriage Weekend. Visitors to the maritime museum will be reminded that the Age of Sail was also the age of horsepower.

From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, drivers in period costumes will offer rides around the Seaport's waterfront in a variety of antique, horse-drawn conveyances for a small fee. At noon, there will be a rally on the museum Green. While the horses are put through their paces, spectators will learn the many different types of carriages. As varied as today's car models, carriages ranged from economical to deluxe in style.

Antique carriages in use at the Seaport will include a Democrat, Rockaways, and two kinds of surrey.

Named for its modest and unassuming appearance, the Democrat was a square box wagon that could accommodate two to four riders.

The Rockaway coach was popular with both the middle class and the affluent for use as a family carriage. The curtain Rockaway model, which will be in use at the museum, was actually constructed in Mystic in the late 1800s. It featured glass in the front as well as in the coach windows, and an unsupported roof projected over the head of the driver to provide shelter.

Another variety was the extension front Rockaway, which carried six passengers and had glass on all sides. A team of two horses is required to pull this vehicle, which is the most elegant of the carriages at the Seaport rally, and may remind viewers of a coach from Cinderella and other tales.

Surreys, known for the characteristic fringe around the top, were light pleasure carriages which derived from the English whitechapel wagon. First introduced in New York City in 1872, the surrey soon became a popular style; its estimated that more than one million of these family vehicles were built between 1885 and 1900, and the price at the turn of the century was between $50 and $100. Two varieties of surrey will be represented at the Seaport.

There will be a charge of $2 per person for a horse and carriage ride around the Seaport grounds. Rides will begin and end in the vicinity of the whaleship Charles W. Morgan which is berthed at a central wharf at the museum. From July 1 to Sept. 1, a single horse and carriage will offer rides on a daily basis to visitors.

The Seaport is located on Rte. 27, one mile south of Interstate 95 at Exit 90. Parking is free. More information is available from the Seaport's Public Affairs Office (203) 572-0711.

Unique real estate company opens in Reading

Home sellers who are trying to decide whether to hire a full service brokerage company or attempt to market their property themselves, now have another alternative.

Real Estate Advantage, located in Reading and serving the area north of Boston, states that any home seller who is willing to show his or her own property can benefit from Real Estate Advantage services.

Real Estate Advantage provides its home seller clients with a complete professional marketing system covering all vital steps in securing a buyer and closing the sale. Services include pricing assistance, home preparation advice, signage, advertising, accepting offers and qualifying buyers, sales negotiation, preparation of necessary paperwork and agreements, assistance in securing appropriate financing and closing arrangements.

Another unique aspect of Real Estate Advantage is its pricing structure. Because salespeople are not involved directly with prospective buyers until they are ready to make an offer, Real Estate Advantage charges a one time registration fee and only one percent at the closing.

The service allows home sellers to aggressively price, advertise and sell their property rapidly and efficiently.

For details, call or write Real Estate Advantage at 274 Main St., Reading, MA 01867, telephone 942-0405.

Did Your Child's Report Cards or S.A.T.'s Reflect his Potential?

If not, this summer let us make the difference between success and failure the next time around.

If lackluster report cards are the problem, we will help your child fill in those educational gaps this summer so he or she will be ready to have a good school experience this Fall.

Also, the summer is a wonderful time for high school juniors and seniors to prepare for those important Fall P.S.A.T.'s and S.A.T.'s. Call us about our individualized workshops, which start in mid-July.

Let the Good Times Roll!
We decided to make our ad a little shorter in length. Some of our prospective customers felt it was too long to read, while still others assumed all those words meant our services were expensive. Quite the opposite is true. Our rates are very competitive, while we don't skimp on your needs. As we don't charge an hourly rate a fee will cover your function in its entirety including family parties, weddings, etc. Important to remember: we do not use tapes. Literally thousands of records at your disposal - from the 20's right up to today's hits. We are the only Disc Jockey service to be critically acclaimed by Boston Globe Magazine. So next time you need great music at your home or function hall give us a call and we'll do it all "Let the Good Times Roll." We play the music of your life. Reserve your date now with Paul Lazzara at 944-4617. You'll be glad you did.

Interferon is also being evaluated in certain viral infections. The published literature reveals the following areas of special interest: the common cold, herpes zoster (shingles), cytomegaloviruses (CMV), warts (including genital warts) and laryngeal papillomatosis.

Most of the published clinical studies have been done with alpha (or leukocyte) interferon (of which there are at least 13). There is also at least one human beta (or fibroblast) interferon and one gamma (or immune) interferon. Relatively few trials with beta and gamma interferons have been conducted to date. Whereas most cancer therapies combine a number of drugs, relatively little work has been done using interferon in combination with other chemotherapeutic agents.

Hairy-cell leukemia (so-called because of the hair-like projections of the malignant cells) mostly afflicts men of middle age. The cause is unknown, although some researchers suspect a virus. Until now, the expected survival period of hairy-cell victims has been several years.

According to the researchers, the dramatic effectiveness of Roferon®-A against hairy-cell leukemia, a disease of the B-lymphocytes (a type of white corpuscle), opens a new door for research on other B cell diseases, of which some 35,000 new cases are diagnosed in the U.S. every year.

New England

From S-11

First Family during the Kennedy administration.

Newport is also known as the yachting capital of the East. You can explore the yacht-crowded harbor on a harbor cruise — the next best thing to having a boat of your own in Newport.

Spend your afternoon shopping at Newport's many small shops and galleries. Then sample some of the city's renowned restaurants. For a little fast-paced nighttime action, head for the Jai Alai fronton and see the world's fastest sport. You can wager a little on the outcome, if you wish.

Providence, the capital city of Rhode Island, offers a very different kind of experience than the resort of Newport.

During the summer of 1986, Rhode Island is celebrating its 350th anniversary and many of the events will be held in Providence.

An historic city, Providence can claim the greatest collection of restored 18th- and 19th-century buildings in America. The Providence Preservation Society will take you on a 90-minute walking tour of this "Mile of History" and let you admire the many individual efforts that have been made to preserve this architectural treasure.

Although the interiors of these houses are not open to the public, the John Brown House is. This 18th century mansion was called the "most magnificent mansion" in the country by John Quincy Adams and showcases early American craftsmanship and decorative arts.

To take a break from all the history, you may want to head to Rocky Point Amusement Park in nearby Warwick. While the rides will entertain the kids, the real treat is the authentic Shore Dinner served here.

Or if shopping is your love, head north of Providence to Blackstone Valley. In addition to a bundle of real factory outlets, you can also visit the birthplace of the American Industrial Revolution at the Slater Mill Historic Site in Pawtucket.

The Providence and Newport branches of the Americana Trails meet again in Fall River, Ma. Once a world famous textile center, Fall River now lays claim to having the largest concentration of factory and off-price outlets in New England. These shops fill the 19th-century granite mill buildings that dominate the skyline.

While people go to Fall River to shop, they also come to visit Battleship Cove which has become the major visitor attraction in the area.

The "cove" takes its name from the WWII battleship moored there, the U.S.S. Massachusetts. Not only can you tour all seven decks of this 680' battleship — from the engine room to the armored bridge — but you can also go below in a WWII submarine, tour a destroyer and see two of the infamous P.T. Boats of World War II, the only exhibit of P.T. Boats on public display in the United States. In fact, Battleship Cove has the world's largest display of historic naval ships of the 20th Century — and they can all be toured for the price of a single admission ticket.

That same ticket admits you to the Marine Museum as well, just a few hundred yards away. The story told here is a different one; not warships, but the great steamships. The museum has over 150 fascinating ship models including the 28-foot model of the Titanic used in the 1953 movie "A Night to Remember." As you look at this "unsinkable" ship, you can hear a taped account of the Titanic disaster in the words of one of its survivors.

Other exhibits pay special attention to the steamships of the Old Fall River Line. These ships used to dock just yards away from the museum during the 90 years they provided luxurious ferry service between New York City and New England.

The newest attraction at Battleship Cove is the Fall River Heritage State Park. The 8-acre riverfront park has a boardwalk, boathouse and an attractive Visitors Center built to resemble a mill building. A free 20-minute multi-media presentation is shown in the center's small theatre which recounts the rise and demise of the textile industry in the words of former millworkers.
